Authorizes staff 'to explore' purchase plan

Council may buy 4 sites for housing or parking projects

THE CARMEL CITY Council has authorized the city staff "to explore" the possible purchase of four sites for use as low- and moderate-income housing or for public parking.

The sites are:

- The southwest corner of Monte Verde and Seventh. This is a 6,000-square-foot lot with a two-story house and cottage that is presently owned by the Monterey Peninsula College District. The college wants a minimum of $240,000 for the property.
- The northwest corner of Torres and Fifth, the Moltini property. This is a 4,000-square-foot Carmel city lot with a house. The property, zoned for duplex use (R-2), is not known to be for sale, and the city staff has not estimated a price for it.
- The southwest corner of Mission and Fourth, owned by the Doud family. This is a 16,000-square-foot parcel zoned for commercial use. Two houses and a television repair shop occupy the site. Price of the property has not been estimated by the staff.

- Two parcels on the west side of Dolores, 80 feet north of Fifth, totaling 8,000 square feet. Currently for sale, each lot has a house on it. Total price for both properties is $278,000, recently reduced from $320,000.

THE COUNCIL VOTED 3-2 last week to continue to pursue the possible purchase of the Monte Verde parcel from the college district despite a jump in the minimum price from $160,000 to $240,000.

Council members became cool earlier this month to the proposal to purchase the site for low- and moderate-income housing after the college boosted the base price. They referred the matter to the Carmel Planning Commission.

The commission, meeting in special session Dec. 7, recommended that the city purchase the property at fair market value "for potential future use for either low- and moderate-income housing or some other public use."

CITY ADMINISTRATOR Doug Peterson also informed the commission of the availability of the Dolores sites.

Councilman Howard Brunn had noted at the council session when it was learned that the college had increased its price on the Monte Verde site that "there are other parcels in town for $180,000 which are better than this location." One of the sites referred to was the Dolores properties.

Peterson told the commission that the city had appraised the Monte Verde property at between $160,000 to $180,000.

Commissioner Don Davidson explained that the college had been "uncomfortable" with its original asking price of $160,000. He noted that "while the property isn't worth $240,000" in his estimation, as a member of the Land Use Committee he had recommended that the city make an offer "on the high side of the appraisal" of $182,500.

Davidson said that "the city should make an attempt to purchase the properties on Monte Verde and on Dolores for low-income housing." He said that if they cannot be developed for this use, the city can always sell the sites.

Commissioner Sandy Swain agreed that the city should purchase the two sites, but without specifying that they be used for low-income housing only.

City Planning Director Robert Griggs noted, "There are

Another black mark

Dear Editor:

The loss of Ron Warren is another black mark for Carmel.

The fact that an honest, more-than-capable person, with personal and professional integrity, feels that he just cannot continue for even a few more months, without even more loss of his own self-esteem is probably the true picture of the need of mandatory changes in this town.

In an atmosphere of "make the laws and you enforce them, but not for all of us," this bespeaks of the Orwellian philosophy:

"Some of us are more equal than others."

Mr. Warren is too honorable to say publicly what the real reasons are, nor will he allow others to fight his battles for him.

Look sharp, Carmel! Without a strong building inspector, backed up by a knowledgeable planning director and planning commission, this town can disintegrate overnight.

When we have good people, why do we allow them to be forced out?

If we're not careful, we'll lose Bob Griggs also.

It's an incredible situation.

Revive train service

Dear Editor:

Isn't it about time to give renewed, serious thought to the re-establishment of train service between this area and the San Francisco Bay area?

If 1975, when funds were actually voted for the revival of the Del Monte Express, was a good time for it, isn't the present time even more so? Gasoline availability and prices are obviously going to get worse, not better. Air service is increasingly expensive and there is less of it.

A vital link between the Monterey Peninsula and the San Francisco Bay area, one that is not dependent on either the automobile or the airplane, is essential!

View through a Grapestake Fence

'Twas the night before Christmas when all through the town
Not an issue was stirring, not one to be found;

The reporters were seated by the Preamble with care,
In hopes that Mayor Norberg soon would be there;

The audience was nestled all snug in their seats,
While visions of bedtime eased the pains in their feet;

And Doug in his glasses, and George with his case,
Had set the agenda for a short evening's pace;

When out in the hallway
there arose such a clatter, Chief Ellis sprang up to see what was the matter.

Away to the doorway
he went with a rush, Tore open the doors
amid a very loud "Shush."

The moon on the breast of the new-fallen pollen Gave the luster of jaundice where each eye had fallen,

When, what to our wondering eyes should arise,
But the ghost of Jack Collins, whom we knew was alive,

And doing so well
in that faraway town, Though we all had been happy when he was around.

More rapid than corn candy his words, out they came,
And he whistled and shouted, and called them by name;

"Now, Helen! now, Howard!
now, Mike! you come too!
On, Les! on Gunnar!
on schedule for you!"

To the top of the stairs!
to the top of the dais!
Now dash to your seats!
without any bias!"

As dry memos that before the wild filibuster fly,
When they meet with such hot air mount to the sky,

So up to the council table
the councilmen flew,

With their packets of reports and water glasses too.

And then, in a twinkling
we heard in the hall
The bi-monthly sound of the gavel's loud fall.

As I turned to re-enter and was just sitting down
In from the hallway came Jack with a bound.

He was dressed all in headlines from his head to his foot,
And his clothes were all smudged from the newsprint, to boot;

A bundle of petitions
he had flung on his back,
And he looked like a peddler

his dimples, how merry!
His cheeks were like roses, his nose like a berry!

The stump of a candy
he held tight in his teeth,
And the chocolate aroma
rose like a wreath;

He had a broad smile and a sharp little wink
That tickled all who watched and wondered what to think.

He was witty and gay,
a right jolly old elf,
And we laughed when we saw he was his usual self;

A wink of his eye and a twist of his head Soon gave us to know he had something to be read.

He spoke not one word,
but started to work,
And piled up the table,
where the majority lurked,

And laying the initiative in front of the mayor And giving a nod,
he rose in the air;

He sprang to the rooftop, to his successor gave a whistle,
And a pat on the back,
before he flew like a thistle.

But I heard him exclaim, ere he went from my view,
"For Ordinance 77-22,
my thanks to all of you."

'Politics' and you

BY AL EISNER

EDITORS AND OTHER PEOPLE frequently pause at this time of the year to reflect on the quality of their lives.

With the approach of the new year, it seemed appropriate that I devote this space to a broader question than some particular municipal squabble or controversial land use problem.

Most people are repelled by what they describe as "politics." The deal-making and infighting appears to them to be irrelevant, or even sordid. Besides, the issues are very complicated, and there's very little that any individual can do to change things. Right? Well, not quite.

If you live quietly, following a "live and let live" approach to your neighbors, and observing the Golden Rule, in harmony with your surroundings, many of the articles that appear in the newspapers seem to you to be trivial, boring and unrelated to the mainstream of your own life.

It was almost 10 years ago that a good citizen, a resident of Hatton Fields, asked if I could spare some time to discuss a problem that was brewing in his neighborhood. He stated that a developer was proposing to split a parcel in Hatton Fields into quarter-acre building lots. The county Planning Commission had already given its blessing to the project, and granted re-zoning.

He said that the whole neighborhood was upset, because all of the other homes were on one-acre lots. But he said sadly, what can anyone do? He was a person who skipped over those pages in the newspapers devoted to local "politics."

Well, there was plenty he could do. We suggested that he get together with his neighbors and ask them to sign a petition to the Board of Supervisors appealing the action of the planning commission. A quiet-spoken man, he brightened at the prospect.

I won't prolong the story. He and his neighbors collected signatures from 97 of the 100 property owners in the area that would have been affected. (The other three were out of town.) They presented their petition to the Board of Supervisors. The supervisors heeded their appeal and reversed the action of the planning commission. It was an exhilarating experience for Bill Davis, who later became active in the OLAF campaign to purchase the Odello artichoke fields.

A former mayor of Carmel, who was a member of the county Planning Commission, resigned a few years later. He cited the Hatton Fields decision as a reason for his resignation.

THE RESIDENTS WHO TOOK part in that action got involved in "politics."

There are different levels of government which oversee and regulate uses of land, and other matters that protect the public health, safety and welfare. These governmental entities are made up of people that are elected by you and me to represent us.

We grant them that power. We can take away that power if they abuse it or ignore the needs and wishes of their constituents. But, this only happens when voters get interested in the decision-making process and then, of course, when they cast their votes.

You might say that "politics" is "us."

Father Farrell's Wisdom

Why nobody loves you

By the REV. LARRY FARRELL
The Dec. 5 invocation delivered to the Carmel Rotary Club

In the comedy, You're a Good Man, Charlie Brown, Lucy tells her brother Linus that she is determined to become a princess, a queen or even a woman king. He tells her that this is impossible as you have to be born to the purple. Lucy insists that with a little push or pull, the right contacts and a real pressure exerted on the right people this can be accomplished.

In all walks of life we find people with the drive to get to the top and they do not care about the means employed to get there. They insist that the Lord justifies the means with which they seek power, position and control over others. The sad thing is when they reach this goal they are miserable.

It is in giving of ourselves we rise above the ordinary; to give without considering the cost, to share our possessions, our time, our energy and our loving service to all men.

O Lord, help us to understand these simple facts. When we say to ourselves "nobody loves me" we might look and see if we are lovable.

Council finds tenants for Flanders house

CITY ADMINISTRATOR DOUG PETERSON asked the City Council for guidance on how to select a tenant for the city-owned Flanders house in the northeast corner of the city. They went much further. They actually selected a lessee and dictated the major terms of the lease.

The council voted 5-0 to accept a joint offer from John Cunningham, director of the Carmel Art Institute, and David Araujo, a retired Carmel Unified School District custodian.

Cunningham and Araujo each offered to pay $400 a month rent and to pay the cost of utilities. Cunningham plans to locate the art institute there, while Araujo would serve as the caretaker for the house.

The council instructed the staff to draft a two-year lease contract incorporating details of the offer. It is scheduled to be presented to the council on Jan. 14 for final approval.

Also approved was a request from the Children's Home Society to use the house for a three-day fund-raising event.

THE SUDDEN APPROVAL of a lease offer for the Flanders house came at the Dec. 10 council session when Peterson presented his progress report on selecting a tenant.

Peterson was authorized by the council last October to select a short-term tenant.

In his report to the council last week, he noted that "while I have shown at least 15 parties through the premises, no formal selection process has been carried out. I bring this subject up again as a status report and for additional guidance.

"Before any arrangement of a year or more is made, I feel the opportunity should be fully advertised so that a completely open process can be carried out

"Before advertising occurs, specifications outlining use acceptable to the council must be decided upon"

PETERSON NOTED THAT there were some applicants in the audience if the council would like to listen to their proposals. The council did.

Cunningham and Araujo then presented their proposal. Beverly Goldberg also made a presentation.

Mrs. Goldberg offered $400 per month rent. She also proposed that the house would be available for four-hour civic events between 11 a.m. and 8 p.m. twice a week.

COUNCILMAN HOWARD Brunn quickly endorsed the proposal from Cunningham and Araujo, declaring, "it's a fantastic deal."

Councilman Mike Brown, who has been critical of the attempt to lease the property again instead of deciding on a permanent use for it, also admitted that "it's the best offer we've ever had. I'm surprised at the $400 each rent offer."

In response to a question by Mayor Gunnar Norberg, City Attorney George Brehmer said that "the most desirable use for the house is obviously a municipal purpose, one which would cause benefit to flow to the residents of Carmel."

Norberg agreed. "We're looking for what will benefit the city."

Brehmer also explained that "it would not be necessary to advertise in light of the fair market rent being offered by the applicants and the municipal benefit to be provided by them."

COUNCIL MEMBER Helen Arnold said that "we should make our initial decision now." She said that the offer from Cunningham and Araujo "is a rare combination and we should take advantage of it and get the place occupied."

Brown said he thought that the council was moving too quickly on the approval of a lease.

"I hardly find this a hasty decision," replied Brunn, referring to the fact that the city has been searching for a tenant since the house became vacant last spring.

Brunn said that the proposal before the council from Cunningham and Araujo "is most desirable." He explained that the art institute is a tax-deductible non-profit organization "which has been a part of the fiber of the city of Carmel for 40 years." He said that Araujo is offering caretaking duties. In addition, Brunn said, the city, by accepting their offer, will still retain 40 to 50 percent of the house for additional municipal uses. He also noted that both men said they were willing to move out anytime the city finds another use for the house.

BRUNN THEN MOVED that the council accept the offer of Cunningham and Araujo and that the staff "work out the terms of the conditions of the lease—possibly for a two-year lease."

Brown said that he wanted it clearly understood that the council would have an opportunity to vote on this matter again when the lease agreement is presented.

Brunn retorted that his motion was for the city to accept the offer and for the staff to draft a lease agreement.

Councilman Les Gross stated that Mrs. Goldberg's proposal may fall short in rent offered, "but it is a far more municipal purpose for the house as it would be available to many people 104 times a year."

other public uses, such as future parking areas."

PETERSON SUGGESTED that a dollar amount shouldn't be included in the recommendation since this might tip the city's hand in the negotiations with the college.

He also pointed out that the Monte Verde site presents a different situation than the Dolores parcels, since the college is legally required to offer the Monte Verde property to the city. The city may have to use condemnation procedures to obtain the Dolores parcels, since they are in private ownership.

Commissioners agreed that it would be better to recommend that the properties be purchased for use as low-income housing or for other public uses, rather than specifying the other use as public parking. The public parking designation may upset neighbors, a couple of commissioners indicated.

AT ITS DEC. 10 MEETING, the council accepted the commission's recommendation and instructed the staff to "explore the possible purchase of the Monte Verde and Dolores properties."

Brunn said that the college may come down on its $240,000 base price during negotiations for the purchase of the Monte Verde site. He suggested that the city establish a ceiling of $190,000.

Brunn also noted that the city should purchase the property for low-income housing and then lease it to an organization to manage the program.

"But it'll never happen if we lose the property forever," he noted in advocating that the city buy the site to start a low-income housing program.

COUNCILMEMBER HELEN Arnold proposed that if the city is unable to use the site and sells it, the profit should be shared with the college.

Councilman Les Gross noted that perhaps the city should consider alternative uses for the site.

Brunn replied, "Let's get the property and then explore other avenues of use. The city doesn't want to go into the real estate business to make a profit."

The council voted 3-2 to instruct Peterson to meet with college officials to negotiate for the purchase of the Monte Verde site "at a fair market value."

Mayor Gunnar Norberg and Councilman Mike Brown dissented. They felt the price was too high.

GROSS THEN PROPOSED that the city explore the possible purchase of the Dolores properties and the Moltini and Doud sites for use as public parking areas. He indicated that the Monte Verde site might be considered for parking, too.

"We're doing a lot of exploring," commented Brown.

Davidson cautioned the council not to exclude the Monte Verde and Dolores properties for possible use as sites for low-income housing. He reminded the council of the need for low-income housing in Carmel, noting that the last census showed 11 percent of the local population was at the poverty level. "And it's probably higher now," Davidson said.

He also reminded the council that the Coastal Act, which Carmel comes under, stipulates that the city must have a low-income housing program.

The council voted 4-1 "to explore" the possible purchase of the Dolores, Doud and Moltini sites for low-income housing or other public uses. Norberg dissented.

Following an executive session at a special meeting last Friday night, the council announced that it had voted 4-1 to direct City Attorney George Brehmer to make a cash offer to the owners of the Dolores Street properties. The council said that it intended to purchase the sites for use as a public parking lot. The amount offered was withheld. Norberg voted against the proposal.

5.6% drop projected for next year

School enrollment decline to continue

A 5.6 PERCENT DECLINE in enrollment in the Carmel Unified School District has been projected for the 1980-81 school year.

The projection indicates a total enrollment of 2,513 students at the end of September, compared with 2,662 students for the current school year—a decline of 149 students.

The projections, reported to the board of education at its Dec. 17 meeting by School Superintendent Carl Wilsey, are intended to aid planning for the 1980-81 school year.

THE DISTRICT receives money from the state based on its Average Daily Attendance (ADA).

Wilsey also projected a continuing decline in district enrollment for the next several years.

He noted that the decline was based on current figures, anticipated graduation, attrition and newcomer data. He said that the decline reflects a national phenomenon of decreasing school-age population.

Enrollment has dropped every school year since 1974-75, with the greatest loss occurring this year when the district total was down 220 students, Wilsey said. The decline totaled 116 in 1978.

WILSEY SAID THAT the school administration is working on a five-year staffing plan for administrators, teachers and classified employees that will accomplish a reduction in paid personnel in the district.

He said that he will present that plan to the board in late January or early February.

Tenants for Flanders house found

GROSS' ARGUMENT WAS suddenly interrupted when Dr. Don Davidson, a member of the Carmel Planning Commission, hurried to the dais from the audience and asked: "Are you sure, Mr. Gross, that you should not disqualify yourself from this discussion?"

Gross leaned back and replied, "Positive." He paused a few seconds before adding: "Why should I not?"

"You have no bias because of any personal relationship between the applicants?" asked Davidson.

"No. She's an individual and I'm not married ... there's no connection between us," replied Gross, referring to Mrs. Goldberg.

"I only asked the question," Davidson said, leaving the dais.

MRS. GOLDBERG ADDRESSED the council later to urge it to reconsider awarding the lease to Cunningham and Araujo. She said that the school would prohibit the use of the main floor during class-time hours. She also noted that students attending Cunningham's school would bring traffic into the residential area.

Mrs. Goldberg added that the two men would provide none of the home-like amenities which she had proposed.

Cunningham said that his school usually has an enrollment of only 12 students and rarely more than 20. He said he planned to use the main ballroom for his school.

Araujo said that he and his son would probably require use of only a few rooms upstairs, including the kitchen.

Brunn said that the school district had given Araujo an excellent reference and that he believed the city was taking advantage of him. He suggested that they should reduce "the handsome rent he is offering" in exchange for the caretaker duties. Araujo, however, said that he would rather have the city accept his $400 per month rent offer.

PETERSON REPORTED THAT others who had expressed an interest and a proposal for the Flanders house were Mr. and Mrs. William Gahagan, official host and hostess; Mrs. Carole Hall; Mr. and Mrs. G. H. McKenzie, caretaker; Ellen and Francis Harris; Dr. and Mrs. Robert Auger, lease; Mr. and Mrs. Jack Skillicorn, lease; Sheila Breau, caretaker; Mr. and Mrs. Ed Gallway for Monterey County Symphony; Harrison Memorial Library; Kathy Nunemaker, lease; Janet Greene; Monterey Institute of International Studies, lease; International Students of Monterey Peninsula College, student residence, and Mr. and Mrs. Ron Blair, caretaker.

THE FLANDERS HOUSE was purchased by the city in 1972 as part of the acquisition of the Flanders Estate.

The Flanders Estate, with the Doolittle property acquired in 1971, has become the city's Mission Trail Park.

During the period the city has owned the house, it has been rented or leased to provide parties and municipal employees. It has been unoccupied since last May when then City Administrator Jack Collins and his family became its last tenants.

Peterson recommended last October that the house should be rented to provide security while the council ponders its fate.

School administrator's contract given extension

ASSISTANT SUPERINTENDENT William Rand's contract was extended to June 30, 1981 by the board of education of the Carmel Unified School District at its regularly scheduled meeting on Dec. 17.

Rand, who is assistant superintendent for instruction and personnel, was hired Nov. 1, 1978.

His present contract, which was to expire June 30, 1980, was extended for one year by unanimous vote of the board.

There will be no change in Rand's salary, currently set at $32,228 a year.

The board decided to defer action on adjustments in salary and working conditions for other administrative staff, classified management, and confidential employees to a future meeting.

A confidential employee is one with access to personnel, payroll and other confidential records. They do not generally have collective bargaining rights.

SCOTT BEASLEY, a 22-year-old resident of Rippling River, exhorts the planning commission to carefully review the housing authority conversion plan. He says it fails to take into account the special service and meal needs of the handicapped persons who cannot cook or completely care for themselves.

LEADING THE EFFORT to preserve Rippling River is Sebastian Bordonaro, the architect. Bordonaro, who has a paraplegic nephew, told the county planners that Rippling River has a "tremendous potential" to serve the housing and rehabilitation needs of the handicapped.

"SENIORS AND DISABLED don't have compatible living needs," says William Hewitt, a rehabilitation counselor for disabled within the California community colleges. He said that the housing authority plan to house low-income seniors and handicapped persons together would defeat the needs of both groups.

But the bitter war is far from over

Rippling River group wins major battle

By STEVE HELLMAN

RESIDENTS OF RIPPLING River in Carmel Valley scored a major victory last week, but the bitter war to save their "hotel for the handicapped" is far from over.

The Monterey County Planning Commission decided Dec. 12 to give a private, blue-ribbon committee the opportunity to revive the financially-troubled 150-unit facility.

The commission openly reaffirmed the county's commitment to preserve the facility as it was originally intended—solely for handicapped persons—and not allow any other public or private use.

The commission voted 7-1 to deny a use permit to the Monterey County Housing Authority for its proposed $1.7 million plan to convert Rippling River into a 79-unit apartment complex for handicapped and elderly low-income people.

HANDICAPPED PERSONS, many of them packed into the meeting chambers in wheelchairs, greeted the decision with tears and applause. They said they opposed the housing authority plan because it would force them out of their home.

Bruce Moore, executive director of the Housing Authority, said that he would appeal immediately to the county Board of Supervisors.

He branded the commission's action "criminal." He said that it was not based on a proper land use decision, but on "emotional politics."

Moore charged that if the supervisors uphold the commission's decision, it will force the county to forfeit $3.4 million in federal funds that are earmarked for the conversion.

Current owner of Rippling River, the U.S. Department of Housing and Urban Development (HUD), had granted final approval in November for Moore's plan. HUD's $3.4 million loan was available pending a decision on the use permit. Moore said, "It's money in the bank."

DID THE PRIVATE group of investors, which calls itself the Tri-County Steering Committee, have the same solid financial commitment? Moore asked. He attacked the committee for not coming into the picture until the last minute after the housing authority had worked for two years with HUD to consummate the conversion plan.

"We'll ask HUD to appear on our behalf at the appeal," Moore fumed.

Carmel Valley architect Sebastian Bordonaro, representing the Tri-County Steering Committee, praised the commission for "upholding the commitment that the county made to Rippling River (in 1973 when the original use permit was granted)."

"Our money is committed," Bordonaro said. The Tri-County Steering Committee—composed of doctors, lawyers, professionals with expertise in helping disabled persons and handicapped residents—proposes to invest $1.2 million in Rippling River, he said.

The investment, according to the committee's 42-page report, would be made by private interests in exchange for a tax shelter and an 8 percent annual return. The center would be operated by the Behavioral Sciences Institute in Carmel, and after five years would be sold to a non-profit organization.

THE COMMITTEE'S PLAN calls for remodeling Rippling River into 105 units, maintaining some form of meal services and expanding into a transitional program for the severely handicapped.

Handicapped persons in need of housing would be able to live there full-time for a minimum of $381 per month. The facility would be expanded to assist persons who had recently suffered an injury and required counseling and physical training to adjust and learn independent living skills.

Several handicapped members of the Tri-County Steering Committee and residents of Rippling River described an "urgent demand" for housing for persons in wheelchairs and with disabilities.

Bordonaro said that he hoped the commission's decision and the committee's proposal "opens the door to HUD for us to talk."

BERNARD DEASY, HUD deputy director in charge of Rippling River, said that HUD will assume a "wait and see" attitude until after the supervisors' decision.

In a telephone interview from his San Francisco office, he confirmed that the HUD central office in Washington, D.C., had approved two loans to the housing authority totalling $3.4 million for the purchase and conversion of Rippling River. But Deasy said that without local approval for the use permit, HUD could not sell Rippling River to the housing authority.

Deasy, who previously refused to negotiate with the private group, said he would be willing to meet with its representatives to discuss their proposal once the "dispute runs itself down at the local level."

He echoed Moore's warning, however, that if HUD considers the private offer, it will have to put Rippling River on the public auction block.

"If we sell to a private group, we have to go to a competitive bid," he said. He indicated that he had received inquiries since the commission's decision, but would not reveal who had contacted him.

ASKED WHAT HE thought of the Tri-County Steering Committee proposal, Deasy observed that it offers little change.

"The facility needs a major amount of work," he said. "Nothing's changed; it's not going to work. There aren't enough handicapped people who can afford to live there."

Deasy said of the Tri-County Steering Committee, "It's some of the same group that was originally behind Rippling River."

He added that HUD, which has wanted to sell Rippling River since it assumed ownership by default in 1976, concluded that the unique housing complex was "built to fail."

THE CURRENT MANAGER, Eskaton Business Services of Sacramento, has been blamed for much of the financial problems.

The facility has been plagued with a high vacancy rate since Eskaton, which also operates Eskaton Monterey Hospital, took over management in 1976.

The 150-unit facility now has only 30 residents, resulting in losses to HUD of an estimated $25,000 per month.

Rents were lowered from $460 to $335 per month in October after Eskaton's policies were criticized because they discouraged new tenants. The rent provides for a semi-private suite with a central dining room for meals and housekeeping and other services for the "mobile" handicapped. But Eskaton's manager had been turning away wheelchair applicants.

THE FLAK OVER Eskaton's management, capped by a lawsuit charging its top officials with civil rights violations at Rippling River, led the firm in November to announce it would terminate its contract with HUD on Dec. 31.

Deasy admitted that "calling Rippling River mismanaged is putting it mildly."

He said that the proposal of the Tri-County Steering Committee to purchase the facility in order to manage it under an expanded program will not have a direct bearing on its sale.

His office would not make a recommendation to Washington based on a local buyer's intent, he said. It is the role of local government to determine what use will be made of Rippling River, he added.

"Someone could bid to turn it into a luxury retirement complex for all we care," Deasy said. "We'd be happy to talk to anybody (about buying it) if the housing authority fails."

THE PLANNING COMMISSION last week made clear its desire that Rippling River remain a facility for the handicapped.

County Zoning Administrator Bob Slimmon pointed out that through its control of the zoning and use permit process, the county could prohibit any use other than that for the handicapped.

Presenting the motion to deny the use permit to the housing authority, Commissioner Sherry Owen said that the county had made a commitment to the handicapped when it granted the original use permit for Rippling River. "There's no need to change it today," she said.

Commissioner Marc Del Piero called HUD "the actual culprit. There has been an enormous, terrifying squandering of public funds." He said that it was necessary to preserve the facility because "the need for housing for the handicapped continues and becomes greater every day."

Gary Varga said that during his year on the commission a problem had "never bothered me as much as this one." Varga said that he was worried that the Tri-County Steering Committee's pledge for financial support is only verbal.

"But it's my gut feeling," he said, "that the committee will do the job. It's a handicapped facility and should remain so, even at the sake of a madcap financial risk."

Chairman Joseph Sullivan said that he was also "loathe" to turn down the federal money. But he echoed support for preserving the facility instead of converting it.

"I have faith that the handicapped will put this facility together. It's possible to turn dreams into cash," he said. "I'll be very disappointed if it fails."

THE LONE DISSENTING vote was cast by Commissioner Bill Peters of Carmel Valley, who said that the Tri-County Steering Committee "has a lot of good intentions, but no commitments."

Peters said that if the commission rejects the housing authority with its federal backing, "we're going to kill our only available source of funds."

He called for the commission to accept a modified proposal from Moore that would not eliminate as many units as proposed in the current conversion plan to trim the complex to 79 apartments.

He concurred with Moore's charge that the issue was too full of emotion to be judged on the merits as a land use decision.

But Sullivan later defended the commission's decision. "It was a land use decision ... a decision to confirm an existing use," he said.

THE TRI-COUNTY STEERING Committee includes Dr. Gene England, president of the Behavioral Sciences Institute in Carmel, which specialized in hearing and speech therapy; Dr. Donald Scanlon of Carmel, a paraplegic, who is a physician and director of cardiology at Community Hospital of the Monterey Peninsula; Robert Ludlow, a Santa Cruz attorney who is a quadriplegic, an athletics director of the handicapped and a member of the Community College Advisory Board for the Disabled; Sharon Kaplan of Monterey Peninsula College, a rehabilitation counselor for disabled students, and William Hewitt, director of Supportive Services at Cabrillo Community College in Aptos and a regional trainer and rehabilitation counselor for disabled within the California community colleges.

LUDLOW TOLD THE commissioners of his lengthy personal search for housing accessible by wheelchair, saying:

"It is incomprehensible that these accessible units at Rippling River may be given to someone else other than handicapped."

Senior citizens and the disabled are in direct competition for housing, he acknowledged. He said that he knew of 104 handicapped persons on a waiting list for housing. "I could fill up that place in six months," he said.

"But right now you're talking about taking away the only place that exists in this area for the handicapped," Ludlow told the planners.

"As long as the option is open to the housing authority, we can't negotiate," he said. "Untie the strings so we can talk with HUD."

HEWITT SAID, "We should all recognize that we're going to be disabled at one point or another."

He and Ludlow both talked about the "new attitude" toward integrating handicapped persons into the community.

Ethel Costagliola, a 59-year-old resident of Rippling River, described how she had lived in Mexico for five years because she could not find suitable housing in the U.S.

"There was no other place for me to be," she said from her wheelchair. "Rippling River saved me."

KRISTINE HOFsheier and attorney Robert Ludlow congratulate each other after the commission's decision. Hofsheier, a resident of Seaside who is confined to a wheelchair, said that she was injured 13 months before and had been unable to find accessible housing. Ludlow, a quadriplegic since the age of 14, is a member of the private group seeking to preserve Rippling River. "The disabled have no place to go," he said. (Steve Hellman photos)

Supervisors overrule planners, approve lot split in Highlands

THE MONTEREY COUNTY Board of Supervisors approved a minor subdivision of two lots in Carmel Highlands last week, overruling a denial by the planning commission.

Tentative approval was granted to Constantine Ash of Millbrae for the lot split on Spindrift Drive at Yankee Point.

Attorney Brian Finegan, representing Ash, was instructed to present records within one week to clarify the legality of an earlier split of the one-acre parcel.

THERE IS NO record of a minor subdivision on the property, according to Wesley Arvig, senior planner in charge of subdivisions.

Deputy County Counsel Jose Ramos said that the 1964 deed that Ash holds for the property does not describe two lots.

But Finegan said that Ash sold half of the parcel in 1969. He said that there is a deed for the adjoining half-acre lot, and that the owner has approval from the Coastal Commission to build a home. He added that records show that the parcel is taxed as two separate lots by the county assessor.

ASH SHOULD BE granted a permit to build a home on his half-acre, Finegan argued, since the adjoining lot has been approved for a house.

The planning commission denied Ash a permit last September, based on what the commission cited as "inadequate septic tank capacity."

Walter Wong, county director of environmental health, told the supervisors last week that Ash's half-acre lot is not large enough to support a septic tank.

"We are bound by an agreement with the Regional Water Quality Control Board," Wong said, "that restricts septic tanks to a one-acre minimum." He added that the Carmel Highlands area is unsuitable for septic tanks because of a granite base, steep slopes and generally poor percolation conditions.

"The rule could be broken," Wong said, "if the parcel meets certain criteria of percolation. But this land does not."

FINEGAN INSISTED that the county could not deny Ash a permit when his neighbor had succeeded in winning a permit to build a home and install a septic tank.

Ramos conceded that the existence of a building permit and a deed for the adjoining lot was "bothersome, since it could lead Mr. Ash to believe he had a legal lot of record." The county might not have a legal position to deny Ash a use permit if Finegan could produce all the records of the lot split property taxes and Coastal Commission permit, Ramos said.

Arvig warned the supervisors, "If you're going to recognize this minor subdivision, you'd have to recognize others in the county."

The supervisors voted unanimously to tentatively approve the minor subdivision and instructed Finegan to return in one week with "all the facts."

"We don't have the right to allow one lot and not the other in this case," Supervisor Kenneth Blohm said.

Ash will still have to win approval from the health department for a septic tank.

Prenatal nutrition class scheduled Wednesday

A prenatal nutrition class for expectant couples will meet Wednesday, Dec. 26 at the Family Resource Center, 500 Hilby Ave., Seaside, at 7:30 p.m.

Sponsored by the Childbirth Education League (CEL) of the Monterey Peninsula, subsequent classes will be conducted each month on the second and fourth Wednesdays. There is no charge.

Instructor Nanci Stetson-Slayen, a home economist and Monterey Peninsula College instructor, will lead a discussion on what foods and nutrients constitute a healthy diet; how to control nausea, heartburn and other complaints; and weight gain during pregnancy. For additional information, phone 375-5737.

Is A Problem Drinker Making Life Unbearable For You?

• Read Every Word

If a problem drinker is making life unbearable, you alone know what you've suffered. And you alone can do something about it. Remember, you can help the problem drinker even if he or she doesn't want help.

• What Not to Do

Don't accuse - he or she will never admit to drinking too much. Don't try to reason with the problem drinker. Alcohol abusers are seriously ill, and the illness affects the mind as well as the body.

• What You Can Do

The best thing (and really the only thing) you can do for problem drinkers is to get them to professional help. Fast. The CareUnit Program in your local hospital offers a unique program that works. We prove it every day. In a few weeks, the problem drinker can look forward to resuming a useful and productive place in society. And you can look forward to a happy, normal life once again.

• How to Begin

Begin by calling your local CareUnit immediately, and talk to a staff counselor. You alone can help the alcoholic. Call now - before your situation gets even worse!

Advisory group meets tonight

County coastal program includes study of CV area

THE POTENTIAL development of areas in and near the entrance to Carmel Valley will be discussed at a meeting tonight (Dec. 20) of the Citizens Advisory Committee to the Local Coastal Program (LCP).

The committee is preparing the LCP for the unincorporated areas in the vicinity of Carmel that are within the coastal zone, including Carmel Woods, Hatton Fields, Carmel Meadows and the large private ranches on Point Lobos Ridge south to Malpas Creek.

The effects of the revised Carmel Valley Master Plan on the Valley lands within the coastal zone will also be discussed, along with subcommittee reports with background information on natural resources, public access and new development within the area.

The meeting is scheduled to begin at 7:30 p.m. in the Carmel City Hall.

LAND USE DATA has been gathered to consider the potential for new subdivisions, lot-splits and development of lots of record, according to Scott McCreary of the county Planning Department.

McCreary, the technical adviser to the citizens committee, said that the land use data is divided into two groups: 1) the existing number of housing units; 2) the "ultimate build-out" of new units under the existing zoning ordinances.

For the unincorporated land within the coastal zone north of the Carmel River to the Del Monte Forest, there are 1,663 housing units and a potential for 476 new units, he said.

"The more dramatic figures," he said, "are for the area south of the Carmel River." Noting that the figures are taken from 1978 records, McCreary said that the large ranch properties along Point Lobos Ridge south to Malpas Creek have 502 existing units. The potential "build-out" is for 3,366 units.

These properties include the Odello Ranch

(both east and west of Highway 1), Fish Ranch, Hudson Ranch, Wilson-Riley Ranch and portions of the 26,000-acre Rancho San Carlos. The eastern boundary of the coastal zone in this area is Highway 1, except for the ridgeland that extends east from Point Lobos State Reserve.

THE POTENTIAL FOR new development is high, McCreary said, because vast sections of this undeveloped land are presently zoned for minimum densities of 2 1/2- to 1-acre.

"The committee will discuss how current land use regulations might have to be revised," McCreary said, "to conform with the Coastal Act and local constraints."

He noted that the county is already limiting development in Carmel Highlands because of the impracticality of using septic tanks, and in other sections because of steep slopes.

THE COMMITTEE WILL discuss the Carmel Valley Master Plan, McCreary explained, because it covers adjacent areas that will affect land within the coastal zone. In the case of the Odello east property, the new Master Plan will directly overlap the Local Coastal Program.

"The plans that are completed first (Master Plan, Coastal Plan and others) will theoretically have first shot at water allocations," McCreary said. He referred to a proposed water allocation system for the Monterey Peninsula and Carmel Valley.

The Master Plan is expected to be adopted early in 1980, while the Local Coastal Program will be approved by the county in early 1981, McCreary said. Limits on growth from the water allocations expected to go into effect in mid-1980 will have to be taken into account in these plans.

All background data for the Local Coastal Program is expected to be completed by May, McCreary said.

The committee will make its recommendations for land use policies, and by October a draft land use plan will be presented to the county Planning Commission for approval. The County Board of Supervisors will grant final approval of the Local Coastal Program.

NEW "BOARD" APPROVED IN CARMEL

There's a new bulletin board in the village near the post office and Dolores and Fifth where folks are welcome to pin their announcements for passersby to see. Comstock Associates, a Carmel building firm, donated the time and materials for the board's construction, according to company president Harry Erickson. Aware of the tight controls on village construction, Erickson said that he didn't dare start until he had approvals from the planning commission, building inspector and City Council.

FORMER MAYOR FINDS NEW AVOCATION

Former mayor Barney Laiolo is helping his old friend Jim Pruitt build a 600-square-foot guesthouse as an addition to his home on Camino Del Monte in Carmel Woods. Because Barney is banging the nails, Jim will be able to build the guesthouse for one-fourth the usual price. The materials he buys are wholesale and the labor is free (although it was reported that Barney takes a sip of beer on his breaks). The job may take a little longer than it should, said the mayor-turned-carpenter. Jim designed the structure with a lot of extra cupolas and peaks, so, as Barney says, a job that should take two minutes takes two hours.

Local children whose artwork earned them $50 for first, $25, second, and $15 for third, were: first grade Woods School student Basil Papas who took third for grades 1-3 with his painting Cannery Boat Sailing on Bay; for grades 4-6, Jason Allotti, a fourth grade student at Tularcitos school, earned second prize; and for grades 7-9, Raymond Johns of Pebble Beach took second and Barry Jenkins of Carmel who attends Junipero Serra School earned a third place. All cash awards will be matched with equal amounts by the mall and donated to UNICEF. Their works will be displayed at the Mall, located at 125 Ocean View Blvd., Pacific Grove, through Dec. 24.

3 members of Troop 3 earn awards

Three members of Carmel Boy Scout Troop 3 received the Silver Moccasin Award Medal at ceremonies conducted Dec. 12 at the Carmel Scout House.

Scouts receiving the Silver Moccasin Award Medal were Van Crego, Addison Phillips and Clifton Bonner. Their scoutmaster, Art Crego, was also a recipient of the medal.

The medal is awarded by the Los Angeles Area Council, B.S.A., to Scouts and Scouters who hike the Silver Moccasin Trail and complete 12 hours of approved forest conservation work in a National Forest.

The Carmel Scouts hiked 55 miles on the alternate Silver Moccasin Trail in Sequoia National Park this past August and completed their conservation work at Arroyo Seco in the Los Padres National Forest last month.

CHS coach compiles impressive record

The legacy of Bob Walthour

By STEVE HELLMAN

THERE IS A legacy of aquatic sports greatness in the life of Bob Walthour, coach of the girls' swimming and diving team at Carmel High School.

Walthour's teams have posted an impressive 90 wins against only one loss since 1971, the year he began coaching at Carmel.

With a 116-48 win over Aptos in the last contest of this season, Carmel stretched its winning streak in the Mission Trails Athletic League to 70 meets. It also captured the MTAL championship for the ninth straight year.

WALTHOUR STARTED the successful Barracudas summer swimming program in 1959 with 20 youngsters. Now there are more than 200 participants between the ages of six and 18 from Carmel and Carmel Valley. And the Barracudas team has become a powerhouse in the local Amateur Athletics Union (AAU) competition.

Walthour coached the Barracudas until 1967.

His daughter, Kathy, 22, is a senior at William Woods College in Missouri where she is the state collegiate champion in the 100-yard breaststroke.

Kathy Walthour is only one of many young women who have come up through the Barracudas program and Walthour's tutelage at Carmel High School to go on to become top collegiate swimmers.

THE WALTHOUR LEGACY extends back three decades to his high school days.

His coach at a small private high school in Santa Monica was Johnny Weissmuller, an Olympics gold medal swimmer in the 1920s who went on to win fame in the movies playing Tarzan. He had volunteered to teach swimming at Walthour's school.

Weissmuller's coaching helped Walthour win a swimming scholarship to St. Mary's College in Walnut Creek.

Walthour recalls working as a beach lifeguard for 12 years before turning to teaching. And before that, he simply remembers always loving to swim.

"I've been a swimmer all my life," Walthour said in an interview last week in the P.E. office at the high school.

"Swimming is the total exercise" Walthour said as a student jogged through the office. "It's less bruising than jogging. The body is supported by water. You don't come up with the blisters, sore joints and sore back."

Walthour swims 1,000 yards during his lunch hour.

REFLECTING ON HIS impressive win record at Carmel, Walthour noted, "We just sort of stay in our own little world here." He was referring to the 50-mile radius of the Mission Trails Athletic League. Walthour said that the MTAL is weaker than the bigger high school leagues in San Jose and Santa Clara.

"I don't know if our record would be that impressive against De Anza, Foothill or Santa Clara," Walthour admitted.

He called the Santa Clara Valley the "mecca of swimming." He said that area has produced many Olympic swimmers, while Carmel has yet to produce one.

But Walthour can name the young women from Carmel who are now competitive swimmers in colleges across the country. These include Gail Frost, a junior at the University of California at Davis; Nancy Parsons, a senior at Pomona College; and Marguerite Meyer, a junior at the University of Utah.

And there is always that string of 70 victories.

CARMEL'S VARSITY SQUAD this year averaged 115 points per meet to its opponents' 50.

In the 11 swimming events that include diving, Carmel swimmers hold the league record in eight.

The record holders include Gail Frost and another well-known Carmel swimmer, Kathy Neill, daughter of former school board trustee Clayton Neill. Neill holds individual records in four events and was a member of the relay squads that established records in the 200-yard freestyle and 400-yard medley events. She is a graduate of UC Davis where she was a top swimmer.

SEVEN SWIMMERS from Carmel are on the 1979 all-league varsity team: Beth Allard, Maureen Falge, Cindy Frost, Charlotte Garrett, Suzy Hermanson, Stacey Hicks, Denise LaFontaine and Kerry Neill.

Walthour's young women also excel in academics. The grade point average for his teams since 1973 has consistently been above B. The 1977 team has a 3.657 average.

"We had four straight 'A' students on the 1977 team," Walthour said. "There's a definite correlation between achievers in the classroom and winners in athletics."

HIS TEAM MEMBERS TRAIN At least one hour each school day, swimming an average of two miles in

BOB WALTHOUR has been coaching young swimmers in Carmel Valley and Carmel since 1959. He is shown here describing a rule of swimming to amused members of this year's Carmel High School team. His varsity team captured victories in eight league meets this year to stretch a seven-year record to 70 wins without a single loss. It is just one part of the Walthour swimming legacy. (George T.C. Smith photo)

the 25-yard pool. "We swim farther than the football players run during practice," Walthour said.

He noted that the limited training time keeps his swimmers from "fooling around" at practice. "There isn't the time. It's intense swimming, not just fanny dipping," Walthour said.

A big asset to Walthour is the Barracudas program. It allows the girls to continue their training during the summer, keeping them in shape for school competition.

"The Barracudas program has a lot to do with the success of our high school program," Walthour admitted.

HE ALSO CREDITS THE dedication of his swimmers.

"These kids will come to practice at six in the morning, then come back in the afternoon to do it again," he said.

Self-determination, desire, discipline and hard work, he said, make up the heart and soul of his teams.

"You couldn't tell these kids apart from the other kids on campus," Walthour said. "But I'm prejudiced. I think they're the prettiest girls on campus."

MARGARET E. CAUSEY
Margaret Esther Causey, a Carmel resident since 1955, died Monday, Dec. 17, at Community Hospital after a period of failing health. She was 86.

Born on Dec. 6, 1893, in Denver, Mrs. Causey was a graduate of Wells College at Aurora, N.Y. On May 1, 1929, she married James H. Causey of Denver. Mr. Causey died in 1942.

There are no immediate survivors, and no funeral services were scheduled. Cremation was at the Little Chapel by-the-Sea under the direction of the Paul Mortuary.

OBITUARIES

DORIS G. EMMONS
Doris G. Emmons of Pebble Beach died Monday, Dec. 17, at her home following a brief illness. She was 56.

Mrs. Emmons was born Dec. 8, 1923, in San Mateo and had lived in Pebble Beach for three years. She was a member of the Carmel Foundation.

Mrs. Emmons is survived by her widower, William; a daughter, Carolyn L. Emmons of San Francisco, and her father, Samuel A. Gray of Monterey.

Memorial services were at 2 p.m. Wednesday, Dec. 19 at the Little Chapel by-the-Sea in Pacific Grove. The Rev. Charles Anker of the Church of the Wayfarer in Carmel officiated. Cremation followed at the Little Chapel.

The family requests that memorial contributions be made to the Hospice of the Monterey Peninsula or the American Cancer Society.

RESOLUTION

INTENTION TO LEASE REAL PROPERTY

WHEREAS, the Carmel Unified School District is the owner of certain real property, hereinafter described, which property is not needed for school purposes by said district, and

WHEREAS, it appears to be in the best interest of said school district that said property be leased to the highest bidder, pursuant to Section 39360, et. seq., of the Education Code of the State of California.

NOW, THEREFORE, IT IS HEREBY FOUND, DETERMINED AND ORDERED:

1. The property hereinafter described is owned by the Carmel Unified School District and is not and will not be needed by said school district for school classroom buildings at the time of delivery of title or possession. The parcel of nearly 20 acres is located near the intersection of Carmel Valley Road and Scarlett Road and is commonly known as the Scarlett Site.

2. It is the intention of the Board to lease said property to the highest, responsible bidder according to the terms and conditions hereinafter set forth.

3. The land is situated 7 miles east of Highway No. 1, near the intersection of Carmel Valley Road and Scarlett Road.
(a) All bids shall be subject to the terms and conditions stated herein and instructions to bidders, bid form and lease agreement available on request from the School District Central Office on Carmel Valley Road, Carmel, California.

(b) The terms of the lease shall be from January 31, 1980 to January 30, 1981.

(c) The minimum acceptable bid for said property is $2,000 per year for the above-stated terms, payable in advance semi-annually on January 31, 1980 and July 31, 1980.

(d) The lessee shall agree to indemnify the school district, its officers and employees against any liability for injury to person or damage to property occurring as a result of lessee's use of the leased property.

(e) Liability (payment) for possessory interest taxes are the responsibility of the lessee (tenant).

(f) Use of the land is restricted to agricultural use. No structures will be built without prior written consent of the Carmel Unified School District.

5. NOTICE IS HEREBY GIVEN THAT at 8 o'clock p.m., January 8, 1980 at a regular meeting of this Board in the Middle School Library of the Carmel Unified School District, this Board shall hold a public meeting, at which sealed proposals to lease the property hereinabove described shall be received and considered. This Board reserves the right to reject any and all bids and to withdraw said property from consideration.

Before accepting any written proposal, the Board shall call for oral bids. If, upon the call for oral bids, any responsible person offers an amount upon the terms and conditions specified herein, exceeding by at least five percent (5%) the highest, written proposal, such highest, oral bid shall be firmly accepted.

All bids should be verified before submission and cannot be withdrawn after being opened. Any bidder may withdraw his bid at any time prior to the time of opening of bids.

6. The District Superintendent is hereby directed to cause to be published a copy of this Resolution once a week for three (3) successive weeks before the date of said meeting in a newspaper of general circulation, published in Monterey County.

UPON MOTION OF Mr. Wilsdon, SECONDED BY Mrs. Gaver, the above Resolution is passed and adopted at a regular meeting of the Board of Education of the Carmel Unified School District this 27th day of November, 1979 by the following vote:

AYES: Frances R. Gaver, Clayton B. Neill, Jr., Pamela D. Smith, Richard T. Wilsdon

CVPOA to elect officers, directors

THE CARMEL VALLEY Property Owners Association is conducting its annual election for officers and board of directors.

Ballots were mailed to members this month. Winners will be announced at the association's next meeting, Jan. 16. Deadline for returning the ballots is Jan. 3.

Candidates for the five open seats on the 13-member board of directors are George Fortune, Jane Jewett, Chris Keehn, Patricia Hughes, Richard Nimmons, William Wheaton, Robert Greenwood, Jack Sassard, and Jim Ravlin.

Nominees for officers are Wharton Sinkler, vice-president; Evelyn Smart, recording secretary; Virginia Crawford, corresponding secretary, and Shirley Snyder, treasurer.

There is no candidate for the office of president.

The next meeting is Wednesday, Jan. 16, at 7:30 p.m. in Hacienda Carmel. Following the introduction of new officers and board members, Supervisor Barbara Shipnuck of Salinas will present a talk on problems concerning Carmel Valley.

THE FOLLOWING IS a summary of the statement and background of each candidate for the board of directors:

• George Fortune is a ten-year resident of the Valley and a member of the La Rancheria Property Owners Association. He is a retired senior vice-president of Balfour Guthrie and Company, Ltd., a merchant and trading company.

He states, "I am keenly interested in Carmel Valley and the need to protect the fine area with orderly, well-planned development."

• Jane Jewett is a third generation Californian, a resident of the Valley since 1976 and a member of the board of the League of Women Voters of the Monterey Peninsula.

She states, "I can only look with horror at what we have done to this beautiful state, and hope with foresight and careful planning that we may save and conserve something for future generations."

A member of the Carmel Valley Master Plan Advisory Committee, she says that her priority for Carmel Valley is adoption of the new Master Plan. She also states that attention should be given to preserve the "scale and individuality" of Carmel Valley.

• Chris Keehn is a general building contractor who has been a resident of the Valley for five years. A member of the Carmel Valley Master Plan Study Committee, Keehn wrote the wastewater disposal report and helped write the growth management report for the new Master Plan.

"I believe a growth management system offers the best means of handling the conflicting aims for Valley preservation and additional residential development," he states.

He calls for support for the quota system that is proposed in the new Master Plan. "One important role of the CVPOA is to insure that growth management and other recommendations of the Master Plan Study Committee serve to maintain and improve the 'semi-rural' quality of Valley life," he said.

• Patricia Hughes, who has lived in the Valley for ten years, is a teacher employed in Salinas. She declares: "I have struggled with the heavy concept of the preservation of man through saving his environment. Each night I return to the Valley to view the battlefield."

"As with children, what you have truly accomplished now can only be evaluated 20 years hence. We need to support the CVPOA in a stronger fashion."

• Richard Nimmons, a former vice-president of Pomona College, has a background in corporate public relations in New York and labor relations in Hawaii. He retired in 1976.

Nimmons says he has been active in civic, community and association affairs throughout his business life.

He states: "I would work to preserve the rural nature character of the Valley within the limits to be approved under the new Master Plan, which I believe offers a generally sound program."

• William Wheaton states, "Having fallen in love with this incredibly beautiful area over 50 years ago, it was with great pleasure that I first came here in 1969 after 20 years on the administrative staff at Pomona College."

Wheaton says he left his post as dean of admissions at the Monterey Institute of International Studies to take an interim job as one of the directors of the East West Center in Hawaii.

When he and his wife returned to Carmel Valley in 1972, Wheaton says that he was "astounded by the growth and saddened by some of the changes that had taken place. I am prepared to devote time and energy to promote sensible, controlled growth. I truly believe the CVPOA can play a major role in that fight."

• Robert Greenwood was a board member of the CVPOA before he left for Brazil in 1977. A geologist and former member of the Master Plan Study Committee, he prepared the geology portion of the proposed Carmel Valley Master Plan.

"I am a strong supporter of protection for our natural resources, our rural atmosphere and our scenic beauty," he states.

• Jack Sassard is retired from a management post with Schilling, McCormick and Company, Inc. He moved to the Valley in 1971, where he expects to spend the rest of his retirement years.

A member of the board of the La Rancheria Property Owners Association, he states his goals as: "A strong and rigidly controlled Master Plan for future growth; a strong position on the Valley's most important utility resource — water."

• Jim Ravlin is a retired corporation lawyer with experience, he says, in working with governments at all levels.

"I will in any event press for an unqualified 'no' whenever confronted with thinly-veiled exploitation proposals which would only compound water, sewage, traffic and tax problems."

Sierra Club: Monterey Bay was lucky in Dec. 1 oil spill

A HINT OF WHAT may be in store for Monterey Bay if Pacific Gas & Electric Co. is allowed to bring 90,000-ton supertankers to Moss Landing came Saturday, Dec. 1, when the 32,000-ton Arco Endeavor spilled an estimated 250 barrels of oil as it began unloading.

There was sharp disagreement over what happened in the hours and days after the spill.

According to PG&E spokesman Ron Rutkowski, some 80 barrels, or 3,400 gallons of the oil spilled into the ocean at 8:30 p.m. Dec. 1. By the morning of Dec. 3, according to Coast Guard spokesman Lt. Jesse Dickens, 99 percent of the oil had been cleaned up.

However, according to Steve Maki, regional Coast Commission staff member, and Dick Menefee, area director for the Department of Parks and Recreation, oil continued to wash ashore as far north as Sunset Beach as late as Dec. 6. On state beaches from Zmudowski to Sunset, tarballs five to six inches in diameter were being found, Menefee said.

DICKENS, OF THE Monterey Coast Guard station said that the oil coming ashore at mid-week was insignificant, not more than "a couple of gallons for the whole shoreline." Rutkowski put the amount of oil coming ashore at "one or two barrels, ranging from pea size to golf ball size." (There are 40 gallons to a barrel.)

But Menefee disagreed with both Dickens and Rutkowski, saying, "There are globs the size of softballs. It's in big chunks and there's a lot of little stuff with it." Menefee also reported that oil residue had been found in Elkhorn Slough, although he declined to say how much damage had been caused in the Estuarine Sanctuary.

Menefee also reported that there were striations of oil, washed onshore by wave action all along the beaches from Moss Landing to Sunset Beach.

Maki said that one of his sources had reported finding oil washed into the Pajaro and Salinas river mouths during high tides at mid-week.

THE COMMISSION staffer was concerned over indications that when the spill took place, PG&E officials notified only federal agencies—the National Spill Response Center in Washington and the Coast Guard station in Monterey.

"The conditions of the permit granted PG&E in 1974 require immediate notification by PG&E of a list of offices, including the Office of Emergency Services in Sacramento, the Emergency Hot Line of State Lands Commission, and our office here in Santa Cruz," he said. As of Dec. 6, five days after the spill he said, "Our office still has not received official notification."

PG&E spokesmen said that they had assumed the National Oil Spill Response Center would notify all the other agencies. They said the spill was caused when a seaman over-tightened a valve flange, causing it to break. The Arco Endeavor has made more deliveries to Moss Landing than any other tanker.

PG&E notified its private cleanup contractor, Crowley Environmental Services of Richmond, at 4 a.m. Dec. 2, 7½ hours after the spill. The Crowley crew and equipment arrived at Moss Landing at 5 p.m. that day.

WEATHER CONDITIONS during the weekend, and in the days following, were mild, which made it easier for PG&E and the Coast Guard to seal off the bulk of the spill using a containment boom with a floaton curtain designed to seal off oil spills.

The oil which washed ashore during the week was believed to have pushed its way over or under the booms.

"There is no way all the oil that spills into the ocean can be contained. That's why the threat posed by a 90,000-ton tanker permit could be so catastrophic," said Rod Holmgren of Carmel, chairman for the Moss Landing Tanker Terminal Task Force of the Sierra Club's Ventana Chapter. The group opposes the expansion of the PG&E terminal facility to allow 90,000-ton tankers.

The Regional Coastal Commission scheduled an executive session for last Monday, Dec. 10, to discuss what one regional staff member called "the apparent non-compliance of PG&E with the Spill Contingency Plan conditions issued with the permit for the 50,000-DWT facility in 1974."

Ed Brown, the commission's executive secretary, also asked PG&E to file a written report on the incident, "including the cause, the amount and type of material, PG&E's response, observed impacts on wildlife and resources and the status of ongoing cleanup operations." PG&E could be fined for failure to comply with the spill plan conditions.

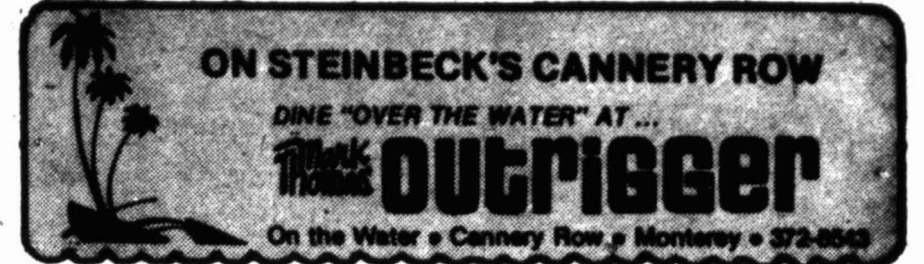

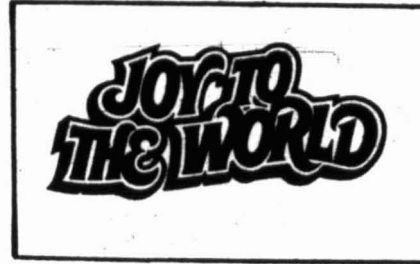

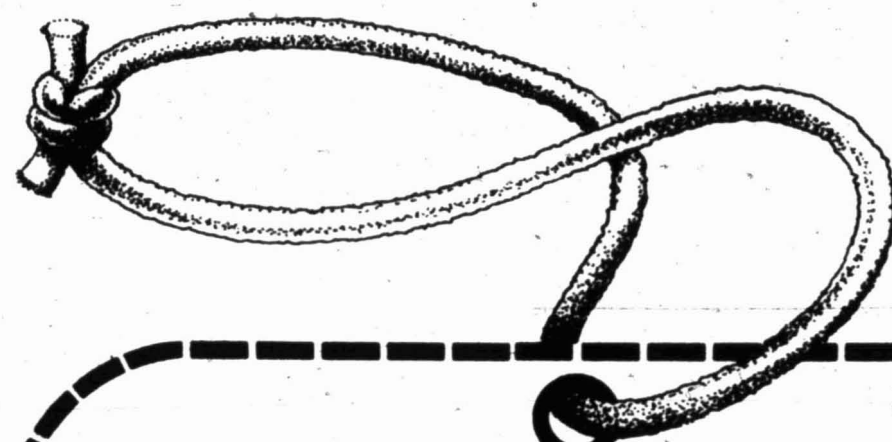

While the commission has already issued a permit for the 90,000-DWT supertankers to visit Moss Landing, the U.S. Army Corps of Engineers has not yet acted on the application.

MEANTIME, SINCE the State Coastal Commission rejected the permit appeal by Sierra Club, Audubon Society and Friends of the Sea Otter last June, "opposition has steamrollered," says Maki. "We just received a letter saying 10,000 signatures have been gathered against it." The petitions opposing the permit are addressed to the U.S. Corps of Engineers.

It was noted by members of Sierra Club's Moss Landing Tanker Terminal Task Force that "PG&E and the people who live around Monterey Bay were lucky" in the Dec. 1 incident.

They pointed out that if the ship had been a 90,000-ton supertanker, the spill would have been far larger, since the line proposed for the new facility will be 36 inches wide compared to the present 18-inch pipeline.

Put these tips and some spare fuses near your fuse box.

With a flashlight, they may help should your lights go out.

Be Prepared. Know where your fuse boxes or circuit breakers are located.

Locate the main switch box—usually near the spot where the PG&E electric service wires connect to your house, or near your PG&E electric meter. Locate any additional fuse box or boxes—usually in a closet or utility room. Keep spare fuses handy.

Check the Neighbors. If your lights should go out, check to see if other homes in your neighborhood have lights. If the power is off in your home only, you may have a blown fuse or tripped circuit breaker.

Determine the Cause. Blown fuses or tripped circuit breakers are often caused by having too many lamps or appliances connected to one outlet or circuit. Another possibility is a defective cord on a lamp or appliance. To check, unplug all lamps or appliances on the affected circuit, looking for defective plugs or cords while doing so. Replace the blown fuse or reset the tripped circuit breaker, following the procedures given below. Then plug each lamp or appliance back in one at a time. A defective one or an overload will cause the fuse to blow, or circuit breaker to trip, again.

To Replace a Fuse. First turn the main switch to "OFF." Make sure that your hands are dry and that you are standing on a dry surface. Look for the "blown" fuse; the "window" may be blackened, or there may be a visible gap in the fuse element. Replace the blown fuse with one of the proper amperage rating, usually one of not more than 30 amps. Never use a penny or other metal object to "bridge" the blown fuse, as this could cause a house fire. Turn the main switch to "ON." If only part of the lights in the house come on, this may indicate that a circuit breaker has tripped, or a fuse in a branch fuse box has also blown. Check these fuses in the same way you did at the main switch. Branch box fuses have a maximum rating of 15 or 20 amps.

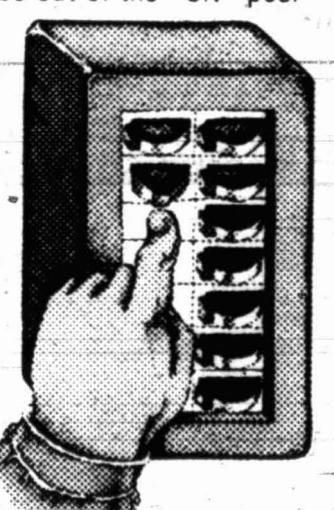

Cartridge Fuses. Be sure the main switch is "OFF" while you are changing cartridge fuses. You won't be able to visually tell exactly which cartridge fuse is blown. In this case, test by safely replacing each fuse with a new one until you find the blown fuse. Generally it's a good idea to replace all cartridge fuses in a circuit when one blows.

To Reset a Circuit Breaker. A tripped circuit breaker will probably be out of the "ON" position. Move the affected circuit breaker handle all the way to the "OFF" position (for some circuit breakers, a moderate pressure in the "OFF" direction is necessary to cause them to reset). Then, move the handle to the "ON" position. If the affected circuit breaker does not indicate that it has tripped (its handle has not moved from "ON" position), and you do not know which circuit breaker controls the affected circuit, try resetting all circuit breakers.

Some Added Safety Tips. Never plug in electrical appliances near bathtubs or basins. Never wash coffee pots or frying pans while they are still plugged in. Make sure that electric tools are properly grounded (with a 3-prong plug), or are of the U.L. approved "double-insulated" type. When you unplug an appliance, pull the plug—not the cord.

Still in the Dark? If you've followed all of these procedures and you're still in the dark, don't hesitate to call PG&E. We'll be happy to help.

Permit also granted for study center

Museum at Tor House approved

THE MONTEREY COUNTY Planning Commission has granted a use permit to the Tor House Foundation to operate a museum and study center at Robinson Jeffers' Tor House on Carmel Point.

Public use of the property will be limited to 12 hours per week. The only evening activity will be two annual fund-raising events.

Parking will be restricted to no more than six autos at one time.

In response to concerns expressed by two neighbors about traffic and noise, the county planners agreed to review the use permit after one year.

THE TOR HOUSE Foundation of Carmel has operated the museum for a year without a use permit, according to Catherine Woodward, a resident of Carmel Point.

She told the commissioners that neighbors asked the Tor House Foundation last year to secure a use permit. "We zealously fought having them operate this museum. There's never been a use permit issued on Carmel Point, and there shouldn't be," Woodward said.

"Study Center" is an ambiguous term," Woodward said. Granting a use permit, she charged, would open the door to a "much greater use" of the late poet's residence.

Woodward said her battle against Tor House made her feel like "Don Quixote fighting the windmills."

BILL ERRICO, A resident of Los Gatos who is building a home next door to Tor House, said his concern was with the increased parking and the possibility of cars blocking his driveway.

Moe Orrett of the county Public Works Department said that the Tor House Foundation should provide six additional parking spaces on the property.

Ocean View Avenue is a narrow street, Orrett explained, that could become congested from visitors' parking. "We've had complaints," he said.

PARKING SPACES VIOLATE the deed restrictions on the property, according to David Hughes of the Tor House Foundation. The National Trust for Historic Preservation, which holds the deed, has placed restrictions on the property covering hours of operation and parking, Hughes said.

"Our intent is not to have more than six persons at a time in the center. At the most it would be one to two persons per hour and the scholars and teachers working there," he said.

Visitors will be allowed by reservation only, Hughes said. Public visits are limited to four hours on Friday and six hours on Saturday. "There isn't going to be a parking problem," he insisted.

THE PLANNERS DECIDED to not require the additional parking spaces.

Chairman Joseph Sullivan said, "I would be utterly amazed to see a mass of people coming there, although I would love it if there was that interest in Jeffers' poetry."

Following the unanimous vote for approval, Sullivan quipped, "This is the first time that a governmental agency has granted poetic license."

Jeffers, known for his poetry of the Big Sur and Carmel area, died in 1962.

Historic Mission Ranch sold to Palo Alto couple

The Mission Ranch, a historic 20-acre property adjoining the Carmel Mission and owned by Margaret Dienelt since the 1940s, has been purchased by Rolf and Kay Stolesen for approximately $2 million.

The Stolesens will continue to operate Mission Ranch as a motel and restaurant, which it has been for many years. Its tennis facilities will continue to be leased and managed by Leo Kohler. Charles S. Heebner, son of Mrs. Dienelt, will remain as manager.

Stolesen, who has been in the lumber and plywood business for more than 30 years, is owner of Rolf Stolesen Forest Products, a wholesaling and brokerage firm in Palo Alto.

His wife, Dr. Kay Stolesen, is a clinical psychologist and vice president of Psychological Health Services Center in Palo Alto.

According to Michael Whitcomb's Carmel, the Architectural Spirit, Mission Ranch was established in 1850 and originally encircled the Carmel Mission. By 1880, the ranch was in operation as a dairy. Four original structures still standing are the creamery (now a restaurant), the barn (now a small dance hall), and the farmhouse and bunkhouse (now motel units).

In the 1920s, the property was purchased by Willis Walker, who eventually sold all but 100 acres essential to his ranch operation. For several years, Walker leased the buildings and grounds to Muriel Vanderbilt Phelps Adams as a stable for race horses. Later he converted the dairy into a private club and built guest cottages. The Mission Ranch was then purchased by Mr. and Mrs. Bertram Dienelt.

The Stolesens have also purchased the Carmel Valley home of Mrs. Dienelt.

Stolesen will move the base of his business operations to Carmel, and Dr. Stolesen intends to develop a part-time practice here. "Both of us have been so taken by the beauty of Carmel and its environs, we've decided this will now be our home," Dr. Stolesen said.

The new owners noted the importance of the environment in which Mission Ranch is situated. Some of the ranch is marshland and contiguous to a state park bird sanctuary; 100-year-old cypresses and eucalyptuses on the ranch are among the first "cultivated" trees planted in the Carmel area. Most of the properties around the ranch are residential.

"Our immediate plans are to re-landscape the grounds to enhance their natural beauty, including the sea and Carmel River views," Stolesen said. "All the buildings are in need of exterior restoration and minor improvements. And we want to make the interiors reminiscent of the days when the ranch was a private club."

"We've been active in civic and cultural organizations in Palo Alto," said Dr. Stolesen, who is a harpist, "and we envision several possibilities for cultural contributions through the ranch."

The Stolesens have three grown daughters. The oldest, Shelly, is obtaining a doctorate in clinical psychology at the California School of Professional Psychology in Berkeley. The second, Debra, was recently graduated from UC Santa Cruz and plans to reside there. The youngest, Lynn, is a student at San Diego State University.

The transaction was handled by Lois Renk & Associates of Carmel.

Middle School teachers oppose return to 6-period day

TEACHERS AT CARMEL Middle School have taken issue with the School Site Council's recommendation that Middle School return to a six-period day.

Carmel Middle School adopted a five-period day at the beginning of the current school year as a result of Proposition 13 budget cutbacks.

In its presentation to the board of education of the Carmel Unified School District at its Dec. 11 meeting, the council, chaired by Jerian Crosby, urged the speedy reinstatement of the six-period day as a precondition for the adoption of its many recommendations.

The Carmel Middle School faculty voted 26-5 not to adopt the site council's report.

"THE SIX-PERIOD day per se is not a troublesome issue for most of us," social science teacher Pat Craige told this newspaper Monday. "But given the present budget and staffing realities, it would mean that current 55 minute periods would be cut back to 40 or 45 minutes. This would water down the effectiveness of each course. In our opinion, this is not in the interests of quality education."

Mrs. Craige added that courses such as laboratory sciences, physical education and crafts have fixed "set-up" and "breakdown" times, meaning, in some cases, that a 45-minute period could cut actual instruction time by as much as a third to a half.

Mrs. Craige said that the personal contact and areas-of-expertise implications of the six-period day are also of pointed concern to her and her colleagues.

Under the five-period day, each teacher sees approximately 125 students in class each day, according to Mrs. Craige. "A six-period day would mean 150 to 160 students a day," she said. "The personal contact with each student begins to slip away."

Additionally, some teachers are hesitant to take on new teaching assignments that may be out of their area of training and expertise, she said.

DESPITE THESE POTENTIAL problems, Mrs. Craige said that, on balance, the School Site Council's report is a step forward for the school.

"Many of the recommendations on the course of study at the school are very constructive and in the interests of better quality education," she noted.

Among the site council recommendations Mrs. Craige found constructive were those calling for more emphasis on writing skills and the establishment of a full year of social studies.

CARMEL MIDDLE SCHOOL Principal Nick Nicholson said that a faculty steering committee had been formed to review the site council recommendations in greater detail.

The steering committee will discuss several new proposals, including one to maintain class time at 55 minutes, but with the addition of a sixth period an hour before normal instruction begins at 9 a.m., according to Mrs. Craige.

The steering committee will discuss this and other proposals, and then submit a written report to Superintendent Carl Wilsey and the school board by Jan. 25.

School Site Council's recommendations

THE FOLLOWING are excerpts from the School Site Council's review of the Course of Study at Carmel Middle School.

The School Site Council is comprised of faculty, students and parents. Purpose of the site council is to evaluate the adequacy of the goals, learning expectancies, instructional materials and evaluation procedures of each subject taught at Carmel Middle School and to make suggestions and improvements as necessary.

SIX-PERIOD DAY

Reinstate the six-period day (periods 0 through 6). Consider the following suggestions for either completely or partially financing a six-period day:

- Reduce some services.
- Pay for some services (parent funded).
- Redistribute teachers and administrators.
- Teachers teach six periods.
- Review budget for possible inconsistencies in allocation of funds between CHS and CMS.
- Make sixth period optional.
- Require only seventh and eighth graders to take six-period day.
- Use fund-raising activities for academic purposes.

GENERAL CURRICULUM AND EDUCATION

Language Arts

- Administer pre and post-tests to facilitate teaching instructions and development of individual tracking systems.
- Distribute tentative outlines quarterly to be kept in students' notebooks. Distribute outlines to parents at Open House.

Mathematics

- Increase communication between home and school by sending a letter home each September and by including same letter as a supplement to Course of Study.
- Base placement of sixth grade honors math on results of testing during the first week of school.
- Schedule sixth grade math during two periods so tracking between honors and regular can be facilitated.

Social Studies

- Require one year of social studies in seventh grade.
- Require more geography in extended seventh grade.
- Require one year of social studies in eighth grade.
- Establish mechanism to ensure that Course of Study is followed with greatest consistency.

Physical Education

- Resume intramurals at noontime.
- Resume after-school sports program.

Foreign Language

- Reinstate sixth grade trimester program.
- Offer German in seventh and eighth grades.
- Do not alternate foreign language with P.E.
- Enable students to take two electives.

Music

- Delete general music.
- Schedule band and/or chorus during the day and social studies/science during zero period to allow students to take band and chorus.

Sixth Grade Exploratory

- Delete general music.
- Consider incorporating health within the sixth grade science course and extend science to a full year.
- Schedule health in a science room as soon as possible.

Practical and Creative Arts

- Retain a "pool" of electives and offer courses for which there are qualified teachers available to teach them.
- Consider rotating electives on a semester or yearly basis.

Other

- Request teachers of all departments to give two grades on written work: mechanics and content.
- Clarify evaluation procedures to ensure that the letter grade, particularly in the "solid" courses, reflects academic achievement and the number grade reflects attitude, citizenship, deportment, etc.
- Establish a mechanism for improving articulation in the district.
- Develop mechanism for systematic curriculum reviews and reports by teachers, department heads and/or curriculum experts.

COURSE OF STUDY

Language Arts

- Require three major compositions per quarter.
- Assign two grades to written work: mechanics and content.
- Describe fully remedial, regular, honors classes.
- Redo the Course of Study so that it quotes the exact textbook course of study.

Mathematics

- Make minor revisions to Course of Study.

Social Studies

- Rewrite learning expectancies for seventh grade.
- Require supplemental reading in sixth grade.

Science

- Revise evaluation procedures in sixth and seventh grades.

Physical Education

- Make minor revisions to Course of Study.

Foreign Language

- Include addition of new French texts.

Practical and Creative Arts

- Revise library aide description.
- Revise foods and nutrition description.
- Retain current Course of Study subjects whether taught or not.

PRIORITIES

Each SSC member was provided with a listing of the eight recommendations contained in List D, and was asked to number them in their individual order of priority, from one to eight, with one being the highest priority.

The chairman of the SSC added the individual priority rankings from each member who voted, and obtained a total score for each recommendation. Thus the lowest totals would indicate a high priority, and high totals would indicate a very low priority, in relative terms.

Nearly all SSC members voted, and provided enough data to clearly indicate relative priority. The results were:

Item	Total Points	Relative Ranking
Reinstate foreign language trimester program	18	1
Add German in 7th and 8th grades	37	2
Extend 7th grade social studies to full year	63	8
Extend 8th grade social studies to full year	61	6
Resume intramurals at noon	52	4
Resume after-school sports program	62	7
Consider incorporating health within the 6th grade science course and extend science to full year	45	3
Enable students to take two electives	57	5

Round up

Cuddly puppies and kittens under the Christmas tree are great on greeting cards—but bad in real life, for pets and people. When people come to Monterey County SPCA to adopt a new pet for a holiday gift, it urges them to announce the gift with a card and pick up the animal after Christmas day is over. The bustle and excitement of holidays make the wrong atmosphere for introducing a new animal to a home and beginning its training as a good pet. The animal could be inadvertently mistreated, injured or simply terrified—as when enthusiastic givers wrap the little fellow as a “gift.”

A Ridesharing Coordinator's Office has been established in Monterey County to help residents match up to form carpools. People interested in joining a carpool should phone 422-POOL between 7:30 a.m. to 4:30 p.m. Monday through Friday. The coordinator's office, a function of the Association of Monterey Bay Area Governments, will maintain a reference file of names of people desiring to start a carpool and a list of working carpools that have room for more members.

College students are now home for the holidays and are available for work. The students are highly referable and anxious for any job. Wages range from $3 to $4 an hour. Prospective employers may make arrangements to hire students by phoning the Student Employment Service at 373-0143.

The Robert Louis Stevenson School Interact Club has completed its annual canned-food drive on behalf of the Salvation Army. Club President Fred Begun reported the collection of over 2,100 cans of food, with the junior class winning the top honors for most cans contributed.

The Carmel Foundation will present Christmas Music (phonographed) on Wednesday, Dec. 26, at 2:30 p.m. in Diment Hall. Tea will follow.

The Monterey Law Center will sponsor a four-week course in Land Use Process in Monterey County. The course is designed for attorneys, land developers, realtors, engineers, surveyors and environmentalists. Topics for the course will include general plan, specific plans, processing applications for zoning, use permits, subdivision approvals and environmental impact reports.

The instructor will be Jose Rafael Ramos, J.D. deputy county counsel; legal adviser to the Monterey County Planning Commission and Board of Supervisors on land use matters. Classes will meet on the last four Thursdays of January from 8-10 p.m. at the Monterey College of Law, 498 Pearl St., Monterey. For more information phone 373-3301. The fee is $50, which includes course materials.

Goodwill Industries has a collection center for the convenience of the residents of Carmel at Carmel Rancho Shopping Center. An attendant is on duty at the van from 10 a.m.-5 p.m. seven days a week.

Santa Claus promises to deliver...

OLGA McCLOSKEY, Red Cross nursing chairman, takes the blood pressure of Santa Claus as she explains he had better get over to the Carmel Holiday Inn on Rio Road on Friday, Dec. 21 to deliver his blood because she knows he will be too busy later. She told him he would have to be there between 10 a.m. and 2:30 p.m. and that he could find no better gift than a pint of lifegiving blood for a patient in need. Although he was in a hurry he took time to give his name to Olga and said that he figured everyone could help him play Santa by donating their blood. Lunch will be served, parking is available, transportation will be provided to the inn to those who wish if they phone 624-6921. The blood drive is being sponsored by the Carmel chapter of the American Red Cross. (Photo by Alan McEwen)

Red Cross launches drive to bolster depleted disaster relief budget

The Carmel Red Cross chapter urgently needs financial help.

National disaster relief operations this year has exhausted the disaster budget of the American Red Cross.

To ensure that the American Red Cross will be able to meet its commitments as the nation's primary volunteer relief organization, it has launched a $15 million fund campaign to bolster its depleted disaster relief reserves.

Each chapter of the American Red Cross has been required to raise a fair share quota to reach the $15 million goal. The campaign is now underway and concludes on Jan. 15.

"Our goal is just $1,000 and we anticipate that Carmelites will put their chapter over the top well before the Jan. 15 deadline," said Doug Despard, Carmel chapter chairman.

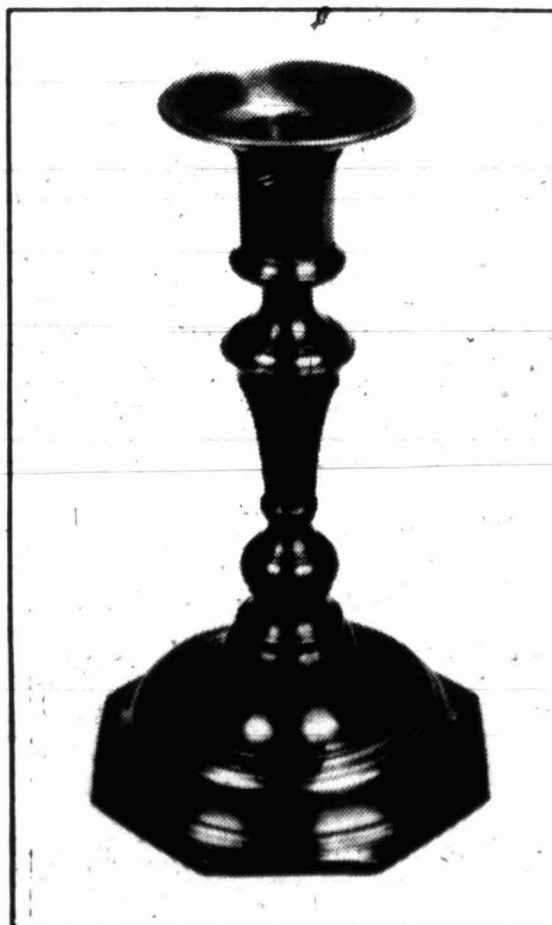

Donations may be made to the Carmel chapter, P.O. Box AR, Carmel.

Between the start of the fiscal year, July 1979 and Sept. 30, 1979, the American Red Cross has committed slightly over $23 million on disaster relief operations, totally exhausting the $18 million budgeted for the whole year and leaving only just over $2 million in the disaster revolving fund for operations during the balance of the fiscal period, which ends June 30, 1979.

Since July 1 of this year, there have been 21 national disaster relief operations. Red Cross funds were spent for preparedness, to furnish food and shelter to 453,331 victims and emergency workers, and to give assistance to 70,688 individual families.

These first three months were one of the worst disaster periods in the past five years and, of course, no one can predict what is in store for the balance of the year.

quidnunc

By AL EISNER

I THINK OUR "Worst Joke of the Week" contest is getting out of hand. The following entry was submitted by Bion Burchell, a well-known Carmel real estate man. He calls it his "Best Worst Versed Joke."

On the theory that he might get some favorable recognition for his submission, and that we might be accused of aiding and abetting his humor, we refused to send him a forest green Carmel Pine Cone T-shirt. Instead, we're going to send "Bi" a gift certificate from Sprouse Reitz so that he can get himself one of those T-shirts that says: "My grandma and grandpa went to Carmel and all I got was this lousy T-shirt."

Anyway ... brace yourself. And be forgiving ... it is, after all, that time of the year:

The Roast Goose

Johnny Joe Stone and his wife Mary Lou, were invited to shoot geese and maybe ducks too, By Bill Rose.

On the day of the hunt, the morning dawned freezing, and Johnny Joe 'woke and his breath was a wheezing. He had a cold in his head and one on his chest, and it was plain to be seen he'd not be the guest of Bill Rose.

Mary Lou called Bill and gave him the news. "Too bad," said Bill, "but I'll bring you a goose." True to his word, he brought that night, a nice fat goose that was roasted just right, by Bill Rose.

Johnny Joe Stone and his wife Mary Lou, ate so much goose, in the face they got blue.

They began to perspire and their faces did moisten. They died, for the goose had been basted with poison, by Bill Rose.

We must make an arrest, the police spoke the word, for the terrible killing of Two Stones with one Bird, by Bill Rose.

AS IF THINGS weren't bad enough, one of our severest critics sent us the following: A Carmel gas station attendant was asked if the "odd-even" plan had caused the lines to re-appear. "No," he said with a perfectly straight face. "If it looks that today, it's because there are so many 'odd' people in this area."

THORNTON CARSWELL, a former Pine Cone printer (way back, during World War II) appeared on the Perry Como Show on TV last Friday night. Carswell now owns a restaurant in Santa Fe, New Mexico, called "The Shed," serving real Southwest food ... like blue corn tortillas, enchiladas and flan. "The Shed" was spotlighted in a special show on the Southwest. This choice tidbit came to us by way of Katherine Spafford of Carmel, a long-time friend of the Carswells.

IT SEEMS TO ME, and to a lot of other folks, that Carmel ought to be a Christmas shopping paradise. After all, our shops sell fine quality goods, at prices that are competitive, and the shop owners usually offer far better service than you'd get in a big department store. I think the major reason Christmas doesn't seem to come to Carmel until just a few days before Dec. 25 is that shoppers THINK they can't find a place to park downtown. Fact is, there are plenty of parking spaces within an easy walk of most shops. And, if a shopper is willing to walk for five minutes, she can find a spot for sure.

Why is it that motorists are willing to walk six blocks or more to their destination in the City, but demand a parking space right in front of their destination in Carmel?

Sunset Views:

Harper's magazine poster exhibit planned in January at Sunset Center

By RICHARD TYLER

A leggy lady in a bikini lounges in the sand high above a city street. A young man holding a Winston Long stares into space as cars rush by below on an expressway.

These giant figures are part of the billboard and poster imagery that surrounds us these days. The poster came into existence with the invention of printing technology in the 15th century; and by the mid-19th century, posters with black and white drawings were being pulled from lithographic stones.

Jules Cheret, a French artist and lithographer, established the poster as an art form in the 1860s. Most lithographers of his day reproduced illustrations or genre paintings on stone. Cheret made his own drawings and experimented with new techniques and with color to create the subtle shadings and textures that characterize his style.

Soon other Parisian artists were inspired to make posters. Toulouse-Lautrec, Pierre Bonnard, and Theophile Steinlen were fascinated by the bustling life of Montmartre; and along with Cheret, they publicized the Moulin Rouge, Dvan Japonais, and other nightspots of the area. Bonnard, a post-impressionist painter, was not above drawing a frothy filly to promote champagne. The posters of Alphonse Mucha enshrined Sarah Bernhardt as the star of the Paris stage. The public eagerly collected these art posters.

The innovative graphic ideas of Cheret and his fellow artists spread through Europe and to the United States. Posters in America, until the late 1880s, were done in a traditional illustrative style. But the popularity of the French artists' work did not go unnoticed by American artists or by businessmen.

Publishers took the first step. In 1889 Harper and Brothers commissioned Eugene Grasset to do several holiday posters for Harper's magazine. Encouraged by the success of these and posters by other artists, the firm decided to publicize the magazine with a monthly poster.

Soon posters advertising magazines, newspapers and books could be seen on newsstands and in shop windows across the country. Manufacturers who had been using traditional illustrations to advertise their stove polishes, patent medicines, and high button shoes hired Maxfield Parrish, Will Bradley, Edward Penfield, and other artists to create bold, distinctive images for their products.

THE POSTER CRAZE in America lasted from 1892 to 1898. Some collectors owned as many as 1,000 posters. The main centers of poster art were New York, Chicago, Boston, and to some extent, Philadelphia and San Francisco. Artists went to these cities seeking outlets for their work among the magazines, newspapers, book publishers, and theaters that were springing up to inform and divert the urban population.

Though many poster artists had fine arts backgrounds, they were making their livings as commercial artists in the large urban centers. Nonetheless, the outstanding American posters of the 1890s reflected the new European graphic styles at a time when painting was still mired in academic tradition.

By the turn of the century, the popularity of the American poster had waned. Stone and Kimball, Way and Williams, and other literary publishers who had been the patrons for so many elegant posters were no longer in business; and the commercial publishers favored a more realistic style. Noteworthy posters were created after 1900 by Louis Fancher, Adolph Treidler, and others; but the sense of an artistic movement that was felt in the 1890s was gone.

With the advent of the automobile, the poster as a form of mass advertising was supplanted by the billboards. Smaller advertising posters can be seen on the sides of buildings, on buses and in subway stations.

Today, most posters and billboards are created by designers rather than by artists or illustrators. They represent a greater variety of styles than ever before, ranging from the humorous to the abstract. Like all forms of communication, they reflect the changes in technology since the end of the 19th century particularly in the use of photography with superimposed type.

THE MARJORIE EVANS Gallery announces the opening of an exhibition of Edward Penfield posters from the Harper's magazine collection. This group of 24 turn-of-the-century posters by Edward Penfield were assembled from the Harper's magazine collection thought to be the largest single group of Penfield posters existing today. Edward Penfield's Harper's posters, which are presented in this delightful and informative show, are only a small part of the legacy of a man, a magazine and an era.

Attesting to the "poster fever" most vividly was the '90s phenomenon known as the poster party at which each person invited dressed in the manner of a poster character currently seen around town. Each came prepared to strike the pose in the poster from which the costume was copied in order that the other guests might have the fun of guessing which poster was being imitated. Rumor had it as well that Penfield's posters were so popular among collectors that some months, more posters than magazines were printed.

Known as a retiring and reticent man, Penfield said little about himself or his work with one notable exception. Of his philosophy of the poster he once wrote: "A poster should tell its story at once — a design that needs study is not a poster, no matter how well it is executed. A poster had to play to the public over the variety stage so to speak — to come on with a personality of its own and to remain but a few moments. We are a bit tired of the very serious nowadays and a little frivolity is refreshing, and yet frivolity to be successful must be thoroughly studied."

"I think it was one of the Beggarstaff brothers who said, 'Our designs may not look as if much time was spent upon them, but I can assure you that it has taken all the artistic knowledge we possess to bring them to the simple state in which you see them.' Some posters consisting of but a few lines and containing but a few broad masses of color require a dozen drawings before simplicity and harmony of color are obtained. A poster to be effective must have the same qualities that a good painting possesses — color, simplicity and composition, but must be expressed in a different manner."

In 1901 after an output of 75 posters (from 1893 monthly through 1899, Penfield left his job at Harper's to pursue other artistic work — murals, book illustrations, greeting cards, calendars and posters in the Harper's style for other companies.

This exhibition will be on view from Jan. 14 through Feb. 7, 1980 in the Marjorie Evans Gallery. The gallery is open each weekday from 9 a.m. to 5 p.m. and on evenings of theater performances. There is no admission charge.

IT WOULD GIVE ME much pleasure to personally wish each and every one of you the most joyous of holidays; but since that may not happen, please accept my warmest wishes for the season and the many thanks for your friendship and support throughout the year.

Wilde-Coward plays staged in Monterey

Oscar Wilde's The Importance of Being Earnest and Hands Across the Sea, a Noel Coward one-act will be staged by the Peninsula Players Friday and Saturday, Dec. 21-22 at the Monterey Peninsula College SRO Theatre, Monterey. Curtain is at 8 p.m.

Two films screen Thurs. at Sunset

The Sun Watchers and Music to Live By, two films of visual beauty about nature and music will be screened Thursday, Dec. 20 at the monthly Brown Bag Cinema presentation sponsored by Sunset Center, Carmel. Everyone is welcome to meet on the terrace at noon to share lunch and conversation or in the Chapman Room if there is inclement weather. Sunset Center will provide the coffee. At 1 p.m., everyone will gather in Leonard Carpenter Hall for the free program.

The Sun Watchers focuses on astronomers around the world as they observe the unusual and dramatic activity of the solar orb. Noted scientists discuss the sun's future and how it will affect life on earth.

Striking visuals and compelling music are seen and heard in the film Music to Live By. The documentary examines how music — religious, jazz, folk and opera — has become intertwined in our lives.

For more information, phone 624-3996.

Hands Across the Sea is a drawing room comedy which focuses on the irrational antics of flighty Lady Maureen Gilpin, affectionately known as Piggy. When her home is invaded by her husband's past cohorts, she comes unglued and creates havoc among the guests.

Directed by Lee Brady, the acting ensemble is composed of members of MPC's Older Adult Program who meet weekly at the Carmel Foundation.

Admission is $1.50, general, and $1 for students, seniors and military personnel.

For more information, phone 649-0585.

UNEXPECTED VISITORS: Ebenezer Scrooge (James Jenson) is warned by the Ghost of Christmas Past (Will Butler, second left) that he will soon be confronted by people from past holidays in the Monterey Peninsula Players production of Charles Dickens' A Christmas Carol. Also pictured, left to right, are Katie Burmaster, Paddy Laurence, Tina Fleming and Becky Rodick, the family of the Ghost. The classic tale will be staged for final performances Thursday through Saturday, Dec. 20-22 at the MPC Theatre, Monterey.

16th annual Singing Christmas Tree presented Thurs.-Sun. in Pacific Grove

The 16th annual Singing Christmas Tree, a holiday tradition presented by the First Assembly of God in Pacific Grove, will be staged Thursday through Sunday, Dec. 20-23 at Pine and Grand avenues. The hour-long performances are given at 8:30 p.m. each evening. The event is free and everyone is welcome to attend.

The tree is actually a complex system of scaffolds. Members of a 50-voice mixed choir from the First Assembly arrange themselves on it to serenade listeners on the street below. The five-tier structure was designed by a professional architect for the first performance and is stored for use year after year.

It is masked with freshly cut pine boughs; lights and a sound system are wired onto the back. Singers climb to their places on walkways which form the tree's boughs by way of ladders hidden from the audience.

The chorus, under the direction of Dominic Passanisi, will perform traditional holiday songs including Silent Night, Joy to the World, Hark the Herald Angels Sing and Oh, Little Town of Bethlehem.

For more information, phone 373-0431.

On stage

Studio Theatre/Restaurant: Mister Angel Thurs.-Sun., dinner at 7 p.m., curtain at 8:30; both are one hour earlier on Sun.

Puppet shows, gymnasts, musicians

Free holiday programs at American Tin Cannery

Puppet shows, gymnasts and musicians are some of the attractions planned Thursday through Sunday, Dec. 20-23 as part of the American Tin Cannery's Children's Theatre presentations at 125 Ocean View Blvd., Pacific Grove. Everyone is welcome to attend the free programs in the mall lobby.

Special performers include Puppeteers Elizabeth Clements and Silvio Frank of Pacific Grove and their puppet stars. The ensemble has appeared at the Feast of Lanterns, the Monterey County Fair and many other community events. The cast of characters includes Count Draco, the evil but blundering genius of Illion; and Giovanni, the hero who triumphs over evil with the help of his friends Star Fairy, Moonman, King Wundergood and more.

Based on the book, The Magic Pearl, written by Clements, the puppet show is the story of how Count Draco mounts an attack on Santa Claus in an attempt to deprive the children of their gifts. The show will be staged Saturday, Dec. 22 at 4:30 p.m. and Sunday, Dec. 23 at 3:30 and 4:30 p.m.

Young musicians Vadim and Lara Gan will perform Russian folk songs Thursday, Dec. 20, at 3:30 p.m.

Gymnastics, Inc., composed of California Class III Team Champions, will perform daring feats on Friday, Dec. 21 at 3:30 p.m.

The Children's Marimba Orchestra of Salinas will present a program of Spanish music Saturday, Dec. 22 at 3:30 p.m.

Additionally, clowns, strolling musicians and brass choirs will all be found at the American Tin Cannery Mall through Christmas Eve.

The theatre is part of the Festival of the Children sponsored by A.T.C. in honor of the United Nation's International Year of the Child.

Holiday Cabaret Thursday at C.H.S.

Holiday Cabaret, a concert and variety show of choral music performed by the Carmel High School Choir, will be presented Thursday, Dec. 20 at the CHS music building, Ocean Avenue and Highway 1, Carmel. The concert begins at 8 p.m.

Seated cabaret-style around tables, the audience will hear the choir perform a variety of pop and holiday selections including 'Twas the Night Before Christmas, The Christmas Song, If Christmas Isn't Love and Broadway Spectacular. Music director Henry Avila will conduct the choir; Accompanists are Michelle Kunz and Lynne Kramer. Solos will be performed by Cristi Hess, Katie Leonard, Shawn Roth and Theresa Lee.

Admission is $1.50, general, and $1 for students.

Backgammon

By OMAR SHARIF

Black rolls 4-3. How should he play?

ANSWER TO BACKGAMMON PROBLEM

At first glance you would be inclined to think that Black has just rolled an excellent number. While he has not succeeded in hitting the White blot, his roll will bring his own blot on White's 5-point to safety on the mid-point. But does Black really want to play safe in this position?

If Black runs with the man on the White 5-point he is, to all intents and purposes, breaking off contact between the two forces and converting to a running game. So let's see who's ahead in the race.

You don't even need to count to decide that. White has one more man in his home board and the men there are further advanced than is Black. And White has only three men on his mid-point while Black will have five. And White will have the advantage of the roll.

To convert to a running game when you are way behind is the height of folly. Unless Black rolls exceedingly well, or White is very unfortunate, it is tantamount to conceding the game without a fight. That goes against my grain.

While the blot on White's 5-point is vulnerable and might be pointed on, it does serve a useful purpose. If White leaves any blot in his outer board, it will be within direct striking distance of the Black man in White's home board. That might force White to make moves that are not to his best advantage, and so lose ground in the race.

Then there is a blot in the White home board. Only five numbers (6-2, 5-2 and 2-2) hit and cover. If White hits with any other number, he must leave a target somewhere in his home board for Black to take aim at.

The correct way to play the 4-3 is to continue to build the Black home board in case Black does manage to get a shot. He should use the 3 to make the 5-point, and bring a builder down from the 12-point with the 4.

REMEMBER WHEN?

50 years ago

From the "Carmel Pine Cone," Dec. 20, 1929

"SANTA AND HIS RUNAWAY REINDEER" FROM GRACE MAC GOWAN COOKE'S MEMORIES OF CARMEL'S EARLY DAYS

We were told that Santa Claus would come over the hill in his sledge, driving his two prancing reindeer, bringing a gift for every child in town. It was a daylight affair. Mothers were asked to bring their children, walk out to meet the saint, and escort him in.

We were together at the corner of Ocean and San Carlos where the old watering trough stood then. From there we streamed on up San Carlos toward the town where the road from Monterey comes down the hill. Every mother and child in Carmel must have been out for we were quite a big crowd.

Youngsters went wild when they heard the jingle, jingle, jingle of Santa's sleighbells. The jingling was coming nearer; it sounded in irregular bursts; and there was some hectic shouting up above there. As we looked, the sledge swung around the last turn with Santa standing up in it. Instead of calling, "On Prancer! On Dancer!" he was really yelling "Hey, whoa! Whoa there." The noble antlers on Prancer's head were slipping. They slewed around and over one eye. He kicked. His teammate took a hand and the reindeer were running away.

The children scattered, the toys in the sledge scattered and the reindeer came to a stop on the wrong side of a pine. The genial saint hopped out of the sledge and declared, "Every kid grab what he can" and the scramble was on.

The reindeer stood revealed as the Peake donkeys. They hadn't liked the sleighbells much; but Joe Hand of beloved memory, who was our Santa, had managed to hold them all right till those antlers slipped.

P.G. — CARMEL HILL ROAD COMING SOON

On or about March 1, Monterey County will start construction of a new road from Pacific Grove to the toll gate at the crest of Carmel hill, it was announced.

About three weeks will be needed to complete the project. Construction is to be carried out under terms of the $2 million highway bond issue program voted last year. The toll gate terminus represents the closest point to Carmel that will be reached by the new road.

ROBINSON JEFFERS GLOOMY BARD OF CARMEL

The Jeffers family have this week begun the voyage home from England, and the suggestion comes ahead of them that Carmel has attractions more potent than any they have found in Europe. As they have very thoroughly traveled the British Isles, and done a part of the continent, Carmel is complimented.

Recently in the San Francisco News, under the heading The Gloomy Bard of Carmel, Max Stern has an account of Robinson Jeffers' life and accomplishments, with an interesting word picture of the poet. He describes him as "nothing if not picturesque. At 42, he is lean, tanned athletic and powerful of muscle. He eats sparingly and simply, likes to toss ball with his two sons, 12-year-old twins, to jump, wrestle, run and swim. He wears an army shirt, breeches and leggings and in cold weather a leathern coat. About him is an air of cool aloofness. He is shy rather than haughty. His smile is rare, illusive and impersonal."

RETIREMENT PLAN DEPRIVES CITY OF CHRIS NEDDERSEN

The town will soon be aware that, with all its advantages, there is one very sour element in the state retirement plan the Carmel citizens bought for their city employees last month. From now on, the state instead of the city decides at what age our employees are to retire.

The age limits are set arbitrarily, without consideration for the employees' wishes or their still effective skills. Four of our city employees are thus forced to retire within the next two months. One of them is Chris Neddersen, city tax and license collector.

"Chris" came out of retirement to take the job a year and a half ago, and he has enjoyed it, and for a while, at least, will miss it almost as much as Carmel visitors to the city clerk's office will miss him.

CUSD VOTES FOR STUDENT BOARD MEMBER

The Carmel Unified School District board of education announced that a high school student will sit with the board as a non-voting member in a year-long trial period beginning next February.

The students will also have the opportunity to request study sessions with the board when and if a major topic involving high school students arises.

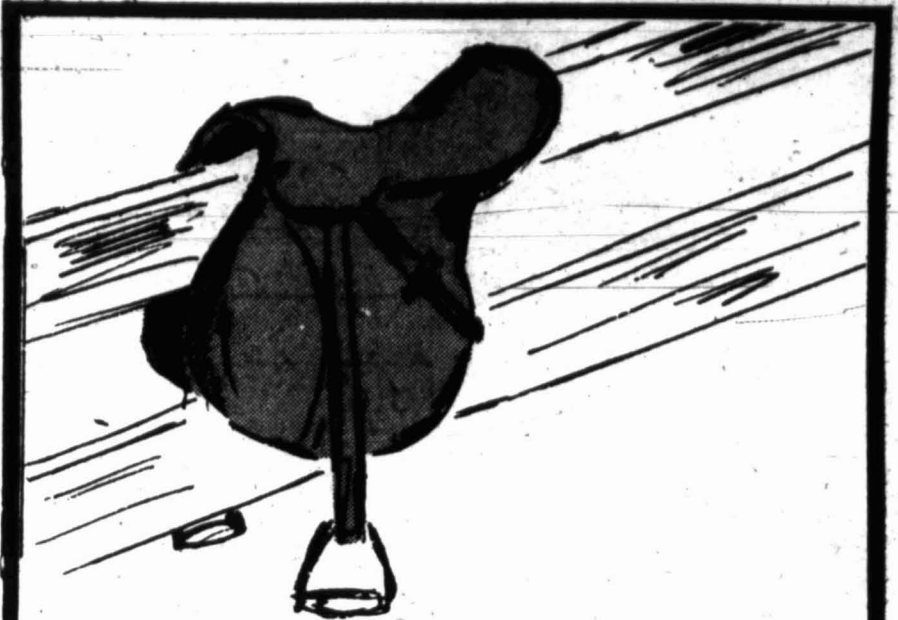

PLANNING GROUP SEEKS NEW GUIDELINES FOR CANYON HOME CONSTRUCTION

* City government in Carmel has been troubled during recent years by increasing numbers of requests for a permit to build houses on steeply rising lots which once were thought to be unbuildable sites.

City concern was specifically brought to the attention of the Carmel Planning Commission at last week's meeting when Councilman Eben Whittlesey's proposals in an attempt to reach a solution of the treatment of canyon areas were heard.

Many of these canyon areas are the tree-studded rear slopes of oversized building sites, which old-time Carmelites generally thought would always remain in their natural wooded state.

Whittlesey suggests that consideration be given to the use of accumulated hostelry tax funds, intended for green belt purchase, to acquire some unused canyon areas when owners of the properties involved would be willing to sell and the city willing to buy.

Part IV—Europe WHITE HOUSE YEARS

(Editor's note: All presidential trips abroad inevitably are presented as grand exercises in diplomacy. But, former Secretary of State Henry Kissinger says in the fourth of seven excerpts from "White House Years," nobody who has traveled with presidents can take the description seriously for most trips. President Nixon went to Europe in 1969 and again in 1970. Kissinger was with him and noted some vignettes to make the muse of history smile.)

By HENRY KISSINGER

To move a presidential entourage smoothly on a fast-paced trip is no small feat. The slightly baffled official party is at the center of this wondrous undertaking. Each is given a little book outlining every event and every movement, timed literally to the minute, together with charts showing where everyone is to stand during ceremonies, sleeping accommodations, participation in meetings, and other vital information.

The European journey was my first introduction to these rites of presidential passage and the antics of the advance men: they were clean-cut, efficient and disciplined individuals H.R. Haldeman had proudly picked from advertising agencies and junior executive positions. What they lacked in ideals and background they made up in assiduity. Those whose primary loyalty is to their own advancement have no ballast when their careers are in jeopardy.

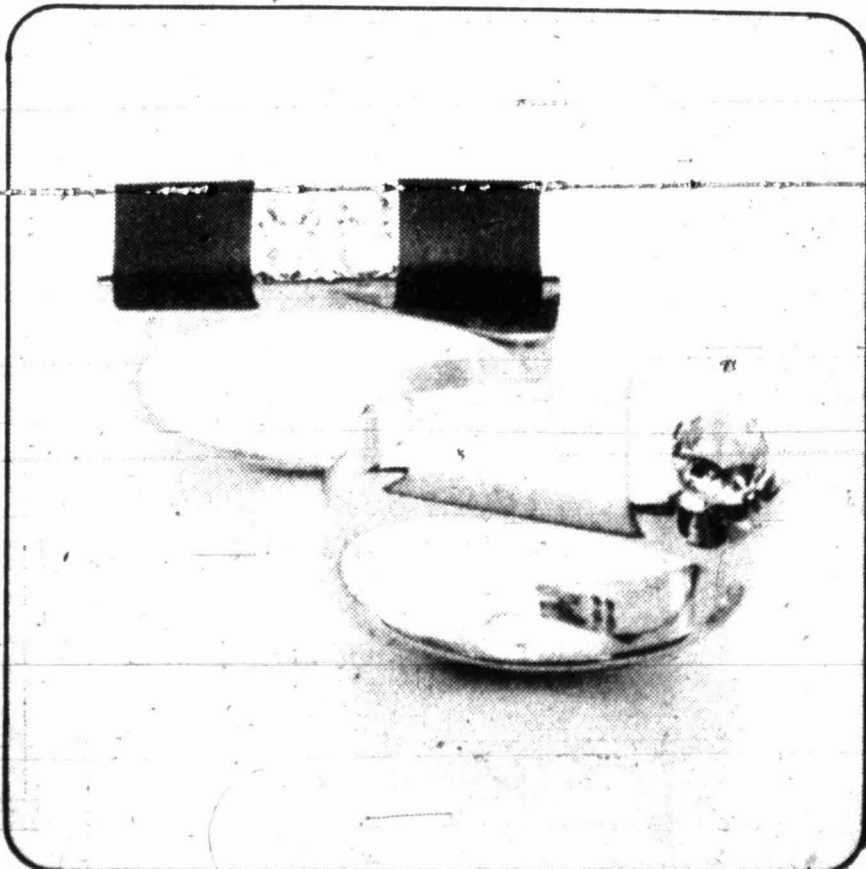

ABOVE ALL, the advance team held itself responsible for ensuring that Nixon was seen by others only in the most favorable light. This sometimes led to absurdities. On a state visit to Ottawa in 1972, an advance man decided that the tan furniture in Pierre Trudeau's office would not flatter Nixon on television and took it upon himself to redecorate the prime minister's private office with blue-covered sofas. He was stopped at the last minute by an incredulous associate of Trudeau almost incoherent with rage.

On the European trip, the advance men's first exposure to the world of diplomacy, when John Erlichman sought to prescribe a guest list for a dinner at 10 Downing St., David Bruce, our ambassador in London, cabled: "Surely the absurdity of telling the British prime minister whom he can invite to his own home for dinner requires no explanation."

Other advance men in Paris, surveying the residence of our ambassador there in preparation for the president's dinner for President Charles de Gaulle, noticed some photographs of John Kennedy. Special high-level dispensation was required before Ambassador Sargent Shriver—married to President Kennedy's sister Eunice—was permitted to keep the picture of 'The White House Years'- the memoirs of Henry Kissinger

his brother-in-law on display.

AS AIR FORCE ONE headed for Europe the president, in addition to memorizing point-by-point analyses, busied himself with a long essay on de Gaulle, adapted from a book I had written on the NATO alliance called The Troubled Partnership. (This book sold modestly, as could be expected of a tome on NATO affairs, except in one city where it sold unusually well. Upon investigation, it was found that the main bookstore had placed it on the shelf under marriage manuals.)

In the late 1960s, the Atlantic alliance stood in a state of disarray that was the more painful for following a period of extraordinary success. American initiative had produced the Marshall Plan; American resources had sparked the economic recovery of Europe; American military forces had assured European security.

Periodic attempts to rationalize the defense structure in Europe were bound to run into resistance. Any American initiative to strengthen local defense raised questions on whether it was a device to reduce our nuclear commitment. At least some of our allies felt concern that given an alternative we might not come to their defense at all, or at any rate quit if and when the tide of the ground battle turned against us.

Europeans wanted to make the Soviet Union believe that any attack would unleash America's nuclear arsenal. If the bluff failed, however, they were not eager to have us implement material resources.

The American answer in the 1960s was simple. American and European interests, we asserted, were identical; there was no possibility that the United States would knowingly jeopardize the vital concerns of its allies in either diplomacy or strategy.

NIXON ARRIVED IN LONDON on a rainy evening to be greeted at Heathrow Airport by Prime Minister Harold Wilson and the foreign secretary, Michael Stewart. Ceremony was subdued because Nixon was afraid of being accused of junketing while the war in Vietnam was raging and had asked to limit protocol to a minimum. This was a painful sacrifice since he dearly loved ceremony, especially in Britain, which has raised understated pomp to a major art form. More than anywhere, British state protocol deftly reassures the insecure that they are entitled to their honors on merit.

We were taken from the airport to Chequers, the prime minister's country residence.

Wilson was personally rather cold—not unlike Nixon—touchingly eager for approval, especially from those he respected. Early on he suggested to Nixon that they call each other by their first names. A fish-eyed stare from Nixon squelched this idea. But the incident did not change Wilson's friendly attitude toward the United States. I personally like him; he never let us down.

THE VISIT TO WEST GERMANY concluded with a tour of Berlin. Huge crowds greeted the presidential motorcade, but Nixon was ill at ease, worried that the turnout would be compared unfavorably with that for Kennedy in 1963. (I noted that the route of the motorcade was S-shaped so that "crowds" could shuttle easily from one street to another. I was told that this device had also been used during the Kennedy visit.)

All presidential trips are inevitably presented as grand exercises in diplomacy. Nobody who has traveled with presidents can take the description seriously for most such journeys. Even if they have egos for it, few heads of government have the time to resolve stalemates; their meetings are too short and the demands of protocol too heavy. Hence, trips by heads of government usually find their principal justification in creating a symbolism.

There is, of course, a narrower political bonus. To say that Richard Nixon, in deciding on his second European trip in September 1970, was unaware of the glow it might cast on the forthcoming congressional elections would be to deny him the qualities that led him to the presidency.

The president of Italy gave a luncheon in the Quirinale Palace, overlooking the lush roofs and beautifully proportioned squares of Rome. In this glorious setting, because of Nixon's tight schedule, an exquisite meal was served in about 55 minutes—proving to Nixon that one of his obsessions was clearly capable of fulfillment. For nearly two years his associates had heard him complain about the ineffable boredom of state dinners. He had cajoled and threatened to speed up the serving of White House meals in order to reduce the time he had to spend in small talk with his visitors. The Quirinale luncheon set a new standard that he never permitted the White House staff to forget.

THE VISIT TO THE VATICAN provided an opportunity for a review of the international situation with one of the most sensitive and thoughtful men I encountered in my public service: Pope Paul VI.

Our advance men had conceived the extraordinary idea that the president should leave for the Sixth Fleet directly from St. Peter's Square in a U.S. military helicopter. The curia, feeling that this represented enough martial trappings for one day, tactfully suggested that the secretary of defense not be included in the general audience that the holy father would offer to the members of the president's party after his private audience with Nixon.

As the official party was moving into the papal chamber for

the plans for President Nixon's trip to Europe in February 1969.

the general audience, Defense Secretary Melvin Laird suddenly appeared, chewing on his ubiquitous cigar. Asked what he was doing there, he mumbled something about looking for the helicopters. I urged Laird at least to do away with the cigar while we were in the papal presence.

The American group was placed into two rows at right angles to Nixon and the holy father, who were seated side by side. The pope was making a graceful little speech when suddenly smoke came pouring out of the pocket of Laird's suit. Laird attempted to quell the fire caused by his cigar, at first inconspicuously, but he finally gave up and started slapping his side. Some of the others whose angle of vision prevented them from grasping the full drama of the secretary of defense immolating himself in front of the pope took Laird's efforts at fire-extinguishing as applause, into which they joined.

Only wisdom accumulated over two millennia enabled the Vatican officials to pretend that nothing unusual was going on and thus permit events to reach their planned conclusion.

GENERALISSIMO FRANCISCO FRANCO had come to power during the fascist ascendancy in Europe. By the time of Nixon's visit to Madrid in 1970, he had, however, survived all pressures with the aid of the historic insularity and proud nationalism of his people.

Madrid gave Nixon a magnificent reception, marred only by the unfortunate fact that the control tower neglected to close the runways after the arrival, and the whine of jet engines drowned the welcoming speeches. Since on both sides these had been honed to a fine edge of platitude, history is unlikely to feel their loss.

When Nixon, accompanied by me, called on Franco for what were billed as substantive talks, we found the aged dictator exhausted by the long motorcade and tending to doze off while the president was talking. This had a weirdly mesmeric effect on me.

Despite my most desperate efforts to contribute to the Spanish-American dialogue, at least to the extent of staying awake, I found myself also dozing off. Nixon was left exchanging ideas with Gregorio Lopez Bravo, the Spanish foreign minister, while Franco and I recuperated peacefully from our exertions.

Maurice Harvey paintings on exhibit

Paintings of California's vistas and seaports by award-winning artist Maurice Harvey may be viewed daily at Miner's Gallery Americana, Lincoln and Sixth, Carmel.

Originally from England, then Canada, Harvey now resides in California where he applies the techniques and traditions of English landscape painting and architecture to his many award-winning paintings. Harvey is a graduate of Southend College of Art and has attended the London College of Fine Arts.

Following his move to California, Harvey began work as a background artist with the motion picture and television industry for which he won the coveted Emmy award. He has won the prestigious New York Art Directors Award for a series of old steam train paintings and is represented in private and corporate collections throughout the world.

American Artist magazine said that his landscapes could be called "nostalgic but the paintings of Maurice Harvey transcend that over-worked phrase ... Harvey's landscapes are not sentimental, they are an expression of the artist's deep feelings about the countryside, the continuity that only nature can offer man."

The works of the California artist may be viewed from 10 a.m.-5 p.m. daily.

For more information, phone 624-5071.

Leon Amyx watercolors on view in one-man show

A one-man show of watercolors by Salinas artist Leon Amyx may be viewed through Dec. 31 at Seaside City Hall Gallery, 440 Harcourt Ave., Seaside. The exhibit is sponsored by the Seaside Art Commission.

An art instructor in Monterey County for nearly 50 years, Amyx is a member of the National Watercolor Society, a life member of the Carmel Art Association and an honorary member of the Laguna Beach Art Association. His works have been displayed in 38 one-man shows and in juried exhibits in California, New York, Arizona, Alabama and Oregon.

KATHY AND HER FRIENDS, an oil by Ann Baker, is included in her exhibit, Small Paintings for Christmas by Mrs. "B," on view through December at Miner's Gallery Americana, Lincoln and Sixth, Carmel.

Vito Catalano died Saturday, Dec. 15, at Carmel Convalescent Hospital following a long illness. He was 79.

Born Dec. 17, 1899, in San Vito Lo Capo, Sicily, Mr. Catalano came to the Peninsula in 1939 and worked as a barber in Carmel, Monterey and at Fort Ord.

Mr. Catalano was a member of the Monterey Council of the Sons of Italy and was also a member of the Santa Rosalia Chapter 36 of the Italian Catholic Federation and of the After 60 Club.

He is survived by his widow, Marie of Monterey; two daughters, Mary Di Girolamo of Monterey and Virginia Niemi of Pebble Beach; a son, John of Monterey; six grandchildren, and six great-grandchildren.

The Rosary was recited Sunday, Dec. 16 at 8 p.m. in the chapel of the Mission Mortuary.

Concelebrated Mass took place at 9:30 a.m. Monday, Dec. 17, at San Carlos Cathedral. Entombment was in Mission Memorial Park.

The family requested that any memorial contributions be made to the American Cancer Society, Visiting Nurses Association or the Salvation Army.

ISABEL H. HIGGINS

Isabel H. Higgins of Mission Street and 3rd Avenue, Carmel, died Friday, Dec. 7, at Eskaton Monterey Hospital following a brief illness. She was 77.

Mrs. Higgins, a Peninsula resident for the past 26 years, had managed the dining room for the Highlands Inn and the Carmel Valley Inn. She also managed the Holiday Inn, before it was changed to the Sandpiper. She was also the owner of the coffee shop in the White Oaks in Carmel Valley Village, selling it 10 years ago.

She recently served as a companion-housekeeper for Merrill D. Cronwall of Carmel.

Born Feb. 3, 1902 in Prospect, Pa., Mrs. Higgins moved to the Peninsula in 1953 and had been a member of the Carmel Foundation, the American Association of Retired Persons and the Rosicrucian Order.

She is survived by a sister, Frances Pool of Turlock; two brothers, Harry Wilson of Renton, Wash., and Jesse W. Wilson of Santa Rosa; one grandchild, and several nieces and nephews.

Memorial services were Friday, Dec. 14, at 2 p.m. at Fremont Memorial Chapel, Fremont.

Cremation at the Little Chapel by-the-Sea was followed by inurnment at the Irvington Memorial Cemetery in Fremont. Paul Mortuary handled arrangements.

SHARON REI MIYAMOTO

Sharon Rei Miyamoto died Monday, Dec. 10, at Eskaton Monterey Hospital following a brief illness. She was 31.

Born in Carmel on Jan. 19, 1948, Miss Miyamoto attended Monterey schools and graduated from Monterey High School in 1966.

Miss Miyamoto was a member of the Monterey Peninsula Buddhist Temple and the Gateway Center of Pacific Grove.

She is survived by her parents, Mr. and Mrs. T. Ky Miyamoto of Monterey, and brothers Gary of San Jose and Bob of Monterey.

Memorial services were Thursday, Dec. 13, at the Monterey Peninsula Buddhist Temple. The Rev. Chiken Takeda officiated.

Concluding services were Friday, Dec. 14, at the Little Chapel by-the-Sea in Pacific Grove.

MARGARET PORTER

Margaret Anna Laura Porter of 24330 San Pedro Lane, Carmel, died Tuesday, Dec. 11, in San Mateo. Mrs. Porter died while en route to a San Francisco hospital after becoming ill at home. She was 86.

Born March 3, 1893, in London, England, Mrs. Porter moved to the Peninsula in 1956 with her husband. They formerly lived in Denver, Colo.

Mrs. Porter was a member of the First Church of Christ Scientist in Carmel.

She is survived by her widower, Arthur of Carmel; a son, Lawrence Nowell of Denver; a sister, Sylvia Harrison of London; five grandchildren and 10 great grandchildren.

No funeral services took place. Cremation was at the Little Chapel by-the-Sea. Paul Mortuary handled arrangements.

ROBIE THOMPSON

son of Pebble Beach, active in community affairs, died Tuesday, Dec. 11, at her home following a lengthy illness. She was 50.

Mrs. Thompson was born April 3, 1929, in Jacksonville, Fla., and had been a Pebble Beach resident for 17 years. She was a member of the Junior League of Monterey County and the Carmel Presbyterian Church.

Mrs. Thompson's other activities included serving on the board of directors of the Youth Science Center, Lyceum of the Monterey Peninsula, Monterey Bay Girl Scout Council, and the YWCA.

She was also active in the United Fund, Heart Association, March of Dimes and school organizations in Pacific Grove schools and at Santa Catalina.

Mrs. Thompson was a founding member of Paracletes, a volunteer counseling service on the Peninsula, and also helped establish cancer support groups. She was also a member of the Beach and Tennis Club at Pebble Beach and of Rancho San Clemente.

She was a summa cum laude graduate of the University of Florida in 1950 where she was a colonizing member of Alpha Delta Pi sorority.

Mrs. Thompson is survived by her widower, Rabun; sons, Rabun Jr. and Bo; daughter, Robin; sister, Helen Given of Birmingham, Ala.; brother, Bo Milam of Jacksonville, Fla., and several nieces and nephews.

Memorial services were Thursday, Dec. 13, at Carmel Presbyterian Church. Inurnment followed. Mission Mortuary handled arrangements.

The family requests that any memorial contributions be made to the Hospice of the Monterey Peninsula, 8900 Carmel Valley Road, Carmel Valley 93923, or to the Community Hospital Cancer Fund, P. O. Box HH, Carmel, 93921.

ANN T. CATHRO

Ann T. Cathro, a 32-year resident of Carmel, died Thursday, Dec. 13, at Community Hospital following a long illness. She was 89.

Born June 30, 1890, in Dundee, Scotland, Mrs. Cathro had lived in Carmel since 1947.

She is survived by her daughter, Alison Cathro of Carmel, and several nieces and cousins in Scotland and South Africa. Her husband, Edward, died in 1949.

Private services were Tuesday, Dec. 18, at the Little Chapel by-the-Sea in Pacific Grove. The Rev. Wayne Walker of the Carmel Presbyterian Church officiated. Inurnment was at Monterey City Cemetery.

Arrangements were handled by Paul Mortuary.

The family requests that memorial contributions be made to the donor's favorite charity.

Our Churches

ALL SAINTS'

A service of lessons and carols, with dramatic readings by senior high school members of the parish youth group, will be conducted at 10 a.m. Sunday, Dec. 23, at All Saints' Episcopal Church, Carmel.

The Eucharist will be celebrated at 8 and 11:30 a.m. and 5:30 p.m.

A Christmas Eve service for children will begin at 4:30 when the creche scene will be presented. At 7:30 p.m., the Eucharist, as in previous years, will be celebrated at St. Francis Roman Catholic Church, Big Sur. A Midnight Mass will begin in All Saints' at 11 p.m.

A Festival Eucharist will be celebrated at the church at 10:30 a.m. Christmas Day. Families with children are especially invited to this service. Children of the church school will present a pageant.

CARMEL MISSION

The Carmel Mission Basilica will have Sunday Masses at 7, 8, 9:30 and 11 a.m. Afternoon masses are at 12:30 and 5:30 p.m.

Confessions may be given on Saturday from 3:30 to 5:30 and 8-8:30 p.m.

On Christmas Eve, the Carmel Mission will have a midnight mass.

CARMEL PRESBYTERIAN

Deane E. Hendricks will deliver this Sunday's sermon titled Jesus in a Word at the 8:15, 9:30 and 11 a.m. services. This is the fourth of a series of four sermons on Jesus.

The church's annual Festival of Lights will be on Christmas Eve at 11 o'clock. The festival is a candle-lit service.

On Christmas Eve at 7 o'clock the church will also have a family service.

CHRISTIAN SCIENCE

Is the Universe, Including Man, Evolved by Atomic Force? is the title of the lesson-sermon to be read at the 11 a.m. and 5 p.m. services on Sunday.

Sunday school for young people under the age of 20 begins at 11 a.m. Sunday.

Testimonies of healing through Christian Science are given at 8 p.m. on Wednesday.

COMMUNITY

The Rev. Ronald J. Menmuir will deliver the last of four December sermons on the Advent. Services begin at 10:30 a.m. on Sunday.

During this service, Mick Peugh will read Coming of the Magi, an annual Christmas presentation of the

FIRST BAPTIST

The Rev. Roy McBeth will deliver a sermon titled Mary Had a Little Lamb at the 11 a.m. Sunday service. A Christmas carol service will begin at 6 p.m. During the second service, members of the church will sing carols around the Carmel community.

ST. PHILIP'S

St. Philip's Lutheran Church will have a special Christmas service on Sunday, at 9:30 a.m. Margery Mayer-Voutsas will sing and be accompanied by Dr. Vernon Brown, a resident of Carmel Valley and violinist for the Monterey Symphony.

Margery Mayer-Voutsas has sung with the New York Philharmonic and the New York Opera Company, and has appeared on many radio and television programs.

St. Philip's will also have a Christmas Eve service at 8 o'clock. Margery Mayer-Voutsas will also perform at this service and will be accompanied by vocalist Jane Waller. The choir will sing at both services.

THE WAYFARER

The Rev. Paul Woudenberg will deliver a sermon titled Bad News—Good News at the 9:30 and 11 a.m. Sunday services.

At each of these services the lighting of the fourth advent candle will take place.

And If Herod Had Won? is the sermon title for the Christmas Eve services at 7 and 11 o'clock. The 7 p.m. service is a family service and the 11 p.m. service will be a candlelight service. Dr. Woudenberg will deliver both sermons.

FREE WANT ADS

For subscribers to the Carmel Pine Cone

A SPECIAL OFFER TO OUR VALUED SUBSCRIBERS

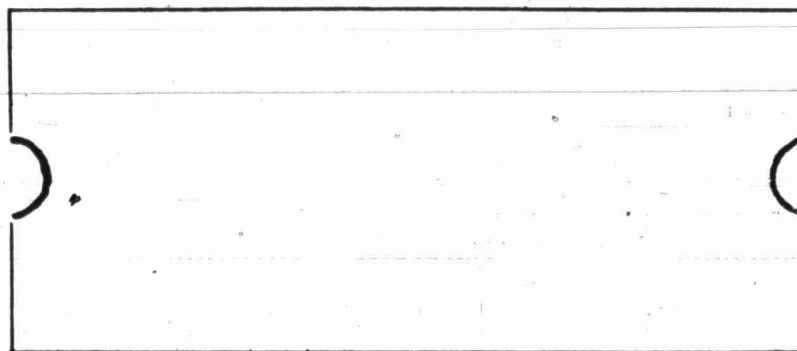

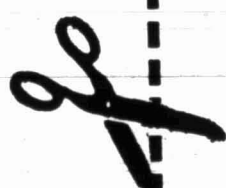

The Pine Cone is happy to be here and we always look forward to meeting our subscribers. As a gesture of our thanks for your continued support, we invite you to have a FREE WANT AD every week, in your paper.

HOW TO WRITE A WANT AD

List the classification you want your ad to appear under in the form at right. Then start your ad with the item you have for sale, etc. Be sure to include your phone number at the end. To make your ad effective, describe your item fully including such things as weight, size, color, age, condition, etc. It is best to list your asking price; this will eliminate calls from people who are not prospective buyers.

RULES:

Free want ads are for person-to-person sales only. Ads for businesses or real estate will not be accepted. Free ads must be written on this form only and delivered to our office by 3 p.m. Monday (no phone ads, please). Free ads are limited to 16 words. The Pine Cone is not responsible for errors in free ads. Limit is one ad per subscriber per week. To run the same ad the following week, a new ad on a new form must be submitted. Publisher reserves the right to accept any free ad for any reason. Free ads must be placed in the following classifications: Antiques, Autos for Sale, Boats for Sale, Lost & Found, Misc. for Sale, Pets & Livestock, Special Notices, Wanted, Yard Sales.

This label is your ticket for a free ad and must appear here on any ad you turn in. Clip this label from the front page of your weekly Pine Cone.

AUTHENTIC HACIENDA

Unique Pebble Beach Estate

in National Register of Historic Places

An incredible residence built in 1926 by skilled craftsmen who took pride in their work, this estate conveys a feeling of solid, rugged durability throughout. Imagine a 60-foot living room with hand-hewn log beams, a mammoth fireplace built of granite boulders, a stone floor interspersed with handmade tiles! Also in the living wing are: a 40x20 "gathering" room, a gallery/library, large kitchen/breakfast area, and maid's room and bath. Connected to the living wing by a portico is a two-story bedroom wing composed of a Master Suite and three other bedrooms, each with its own bath. A separate building houses two more bedrooms and bath, plus a darkroom, a hobby room and a large shop/garage area. All of this is located on an acre, surrounded by beautiful, gnarled oaks, pines and native growth. $525,000.

LARGE ASSUMABLE 12¼ LOAN (APR) COMPLETELY FURNISHED FAMILY HOME IN PRIME PEBBLE BEACH LOCATION!!!

Situated in a prestigious setting overlooking a greenbelt with a glimpse of the ocean is this one-of-a-kind, impeccably decorated, custom-built home. Perfect for the executive or doctor looking for a home close to the hospital, it offers six bedrooms (two are currently used for his and her studies), four baths, an impressive living room with raised hearth fireplace and glassed wall overlooking the forest, formal dining room, breakfast/sitting room with fireplace off the gourmet kitchen and a family room with its own tiled fireplace. Two of the bedrooms and bath could be a private guest suite since they are separate from the main living area and have an outside entrance. The grounds are impressively manicured and fully landscaped—the huge, completely fenced back yard is just right for growing children and their romping dogs! Quality throughout earmarks this home as one of the best values in Pebble Beach. Please call for an appointment to view this exceptional home with an impressive inventory of fine furniture. Offered at $395,000.

PEBBLE BEACH WITH A POINT LOBOS VIEW—A CLASSIC CONTEMPORARY

A delight of light from skylights, sunlit, view-filled windows surprise and excite a venture beyond an unpretentious doorway into a unique, classic, contemporary, architect-designed home. Trees frame a spectacular view of Pt. Lobos from the living room and from the entire upper level, in this well-designed, superbly structured, split level, three-bedroom, two-bath, nursery and/or den showplace. Located a stone's throw from the Hill Gate, Carmel and all the freeways. Treat yourself to the home you deserve, to the home that will fill you with a sense of joy and pride of ownership. Priced realistically at $296,500.

CONTEMPORARY BEAUTY IN CARMEL WOODS

We are proud to present our newest listing in prestigious Carmel Woods. Enter through the charming enclosed courtyard that insures privacy and delightful outdoor entertaining to the 31½'x17½' living room with beautiful hardwood floors, whitewashed beam ceiling and adobe fireplace. The living room, master bedroom and other two bedrooms all have sliding glass doors leading to decks—is that a peek of Monterey Bay from the living room? The kitchen is fully-equipped and totally functional with its tile counters and leads directly to the double attached garage with Genie. The home is only seven years old, so if you're been looking for a Carmel charmer without the problems of an older home, please call us for a private showing. Offered at $175,000.

WILLING TO GAMBLE?

Spectacular white water ocean-view building site in Carmel Highlands. Unfortunately it cannot be built on until a sewer system is developed—several years. It is priced accordingly—only $57,500 and the owner will finance with a reasonable down payment. This could be a real sleeper for the future.

SYLVAN SETTING

Overlooking the forest, this attractive Carmel Woods home has a great plan for entertaining—opening onto a large deck. Two bedrooms, two baths, convenient kitchen and breakfast room. Downstairs, there is a studio with bath. This is an estate sale, so call for further information.

START YOUR OWN BUSINESS

1,180 square feet of excellent display area plus furniture and fixtures. Seven months to go on lease with two five-year option periods. Good location in Carmel. $20,000.

CARMEL WOODS—

Custom-built three-bedroom, two-bath home with cozy living room with used brick fireplace and high ceiling. There's another fireplace in the master bedroom. Lots of built-ins. $154,500.

TWAS THE WEEK

before Christmas,
And all through Carmel, The carols were ringing, the motels were swelled.
The locals were snuggled in their cute Carmel homes, and the homeless were grumpy, like ten little gnomes.

But Virginia is not sleeping in nightgown or cap, She's got listings and land you'll buy in a snap!
You'll fly to your windows throw open the sash, and see ocean and pine trees, mountains and grass.

Then what to your wondering eyes will appear, but Bungay and Nopert, Bath and Brad. With speed and efficiency they'll help you to pick, a home that will please even Jolly Old Nick.

More rapid than eagles your listings will sell. You'll whistle and shout while your sale quickly jells.

On condos, on rentals,
on bus, opps. and homes,
Brad and his buddies are very well known.

And then in a twinkling
You'll know you were right, when visions of escrow are coming in sight. Your worries are over, your house has been chosen.

Aren't you glad you're not elsewhere
where everyone's frozen?
A bundle of listings they have at their desks, of all the homes listed,
they'll get you the best!
Their eyes always twinkle, their smiles are so merry, you'll be glad that you met them, you'll never be wary!

With Hunter's well known face, the nicely rounded Joanne, Brad, Dawn and
Ron will find you a place.

With a wink of your eye, and a twist of your head, you soon will be nestled in your merry homestead.

With little time wasted,
and lots of hard work, Brad will fill up your stocking, your new life will perk!

And laying a finger aside of his nose, and giving a nod, he will gaily propose, just the right Comstock for you and your bunch, and what better present, they'll love you so much!

And when you're all settled, and he drives out of sight, you'll hear him exclaim with sparkling delight ...

Christmas in Carmel

Early in December, we meet to light our community Christmas tree, a towering pine growing in the center garden strip on Ocean Avenue, our main street. We sing carols led by choristers, the Mayor wishes us "Merry Christmas," Youth Center members serve cider, the Business Association announces winners of the decoration contest, Santa Claus gives us a candy cane if we've been good -- or if we haven't -- then we all troop around town in the crisp night air to admire Yuletide adornment of shops and businesses.

At Christmastime, too, the Choral Society and the Symphony make memorable music at centuries-old Carmel Mission; sisters reverently lift their voices in a candlelit Mass at the Carmelite Monastery; other church choirs and all of us who love joyous melodies sing carols of many lands at Sunset Center; the Cultural Commission awards a carol-writing contest prize.

Our very young carol, too, in our churches and for the very old in rest homes, for patients at the Community Hospital with its many trees, each decorated differently by the Pink Ladies.

Christmas in Carmel also encompasses the Crafts Fair at Sunset Center when townspeople tempt us with homemade gifts; the Fair Ladies' creative sale at the Women's Club; the bazaar to benefit Gateway Center at La Playa Hotel bright with Mexican folk art ornamentation;
the Victorian tree at Pine Inn; the Dickens Dinner at All Saints', also this church's "posada" procession to our inns led by costumed Mary and Joseph.

Part of our Carmel Christmas as well are
The Hanging of the Greens ceremony at the Church of the Wayfarer; the Christmas Day dinner at Carmel Foundation's Town House, that friendly meeting place for those of us who have seen many, many Christmases;
the Forestry Commission giving away pine seedlings for our gardens when we go to the Post Office to empty our mailboxes crowded with cards; the Fire House outline in many-hued lights put up by our volunteer firemen who also, year-round, man our Red Cross ambulance; and the Christmas Party for all of us at our lovely Library.

Adding delight to our Christmastime are our students home from colleges across the country and calling greetings to friends as they mingle with us and visitors thronging to our fascinating shops, many tucked away in quaint courtyards, and all offering wondrous wares from far and near; and, as always, twinkling trees in almost every home along our twisting, tree-bordered streets.

And around our town at Christmas is Nature's fabulous gift wrap -- flaming sunsets, the blue, blue ocean edged with spindrift-maned, translucent green waves surging shoreward to break in snowy surf along our silver sand beach -- our evergreens, the fragrant pines, graceful oaks and seabreeze-sculptured cypresses -- and this year, kissed by gentle rain, our greening hills, manzanita adorned with waxen bells, ceanothus decked with azure bloom.

To all of you who fell in love with our town, came to us to help you find your home, or the site of the house of your dreams -- to all of you who added to our happiness in other ways this year -- Merry Christmas! -- our hearts are filled with gratitude for another Christmas in Carmel and most especially for YOU!

SHEPHERDS OFFER their humble gifts to the baby Jesus in one of the Biblical scenes to be enacted at the annual Christmas pageant, The Greatest Story Ever Told, Friday through Sunday, Dec. 21-23 on the 120-foot outdoor stage at 1023 David Ave., Pacific Grove. Members of the First Church of God in Pacific Grove present the pageant each year. Performances are at 8 and 8:30 p.m. each evening; there is no charge for admission.

Yule Log ceremony Christmas Eve

The traditional Laying of the Yule Log will be presented as part of the Scottish Merry Month celebrations at the Highlands Inn — four miles south of Carmel on Highway 1. The event begins at 9 p.m. Christmas Eve, Dec. 24 and will conclude with a party and dancing. Everyone is welcome to attend; there is no charge.

The evening begins with a ceremonial search for a Yule Log, conducted by the Inn's bellmen and crew, who will make a mock search through the woods accompanied by the Highland Pipers.

The Yule Log, the largest log in the forest, will be carried into the Inn's lobby and laid on the massive stone hearth. Red wine will be poured over it to symbolize the birth of the sun. The log will then be lighted with the ashes of last year's Yule Log to symbolize the passing of the Winter Solstice.

Celebrants are advised that seating is limited.

For more information, phone 624-3801.

Vertical roaster demonstrated

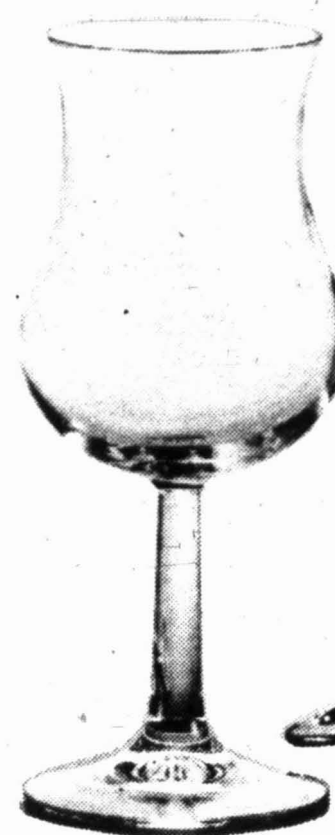

The advantages of a vertical roaster will be demonstrated by its inventor Dennis Spanek Saturday, Dec. 22 at the Cooks' Club presentation at the Peppercorn in The Barnyard, Highway 1 and Rio Road, Carmel. Everyone is welcome to attend the free program from 10 a.m.-noon and 1-3 p.m.

For more information, phone 625-0100.

A visit to Ste. Chapelle Winery in picturesque Sunny Slope, Idaho

By ROBERT LAWRENCE BALZER

THE SIGHT OF THE rounded slopes of the Salmon River Mountains northwest of Boise, glistening with a rare luminous light, would impress any beholder.

In the afternoon light, they become pink and gold, adding to the mystique, enchanting visitors to the Ste. Chapelle Winery, on an eminence in Sunny Slope, a 35-minute drive west of Boise.

Winemaker Bill Broich explained the name of the winery had come from the famous royal chapel of Saint-Chapelle in Paris, known for its vaulting stained glass windows which form its western wall.

As we approached the winery, the ecclesiastical aspect of the architecture was readily apparent, but we could also see that there was no stained glass in the tall, multistoried gothic windows. Once inside, we understood the sensitive reason for the clear glass, perhaps more apparent in the wintry light than in other seasons.

THE VISTA BELOW, AND across the Emmett Valley, became its own pattern, inspiring awe. It's no exaggeration to say that the wines produced here may also inspire some awe, and were the reason for our pilgrimage. We'll come back to them.

Our flight to Idaho from Los Angeles was routed via Portland, Ore., with an hour and a half stopover.

Our longtime friend and fellow wine enthusiast Robert Gillette of Lake Osego, champion of regional wines of the Pacific Northwest, arranged a quick tasting of Cote des Colombe wines in a VIP room of the Portland airport.

Joe Colombe, who teaches winemaking at the Oregon Museum of Science and Industry, produces less than 4,000 cases of wine per year, mostly from grapes grown in the most northern vineyard in the state, plus some from Washington state and the Willamette Valley.

The Cote des Colombe 1978 Willamette Valley Chardonnay, the first wine presented to us, had a pleasing buttery richness of body but a curious bouquet, obviously from wood. "This is the only wine I know of," he said, "finished with Oregon white oak." Not finished in oak barrels or casks, but treated with oak chips, air-dried for three years.

His 1978 Washington Chenin Blanc, cold-fermented in oak vats, sweet-edged, but with clean, balanced acidity, free of those oak chips, was a superb wine but of limited supply.

A 1977 Washington White Riesling, of a gentle 10.8 percent alcohol, touched with Oregon oak, was pleasing, but again with a regional character. An Oregon 1978 Cabernet Sauvignon sample showed evidence of its 100 percent Cabernet breed, developing in a fine bouquet.

FROM PORTLAND TO Boise, we reflected on these vinifera wines, from a pioneering planting less than a decade old. All well-made, traditional wines from grape species which, in themselves, have almost 2,000 years of history in European locations. What would we find from young vineyards in the Rockies?

Enologist Bruce Schatz, professor of chemistry of the College of Idaho, had brought us our first sample of Idaho State Johannisberg Riesling two years ago.

The 1976 vintaged wine was brilliantly pale green-gold, fresh, clean, tart, refreshing, with all the classic attributes of fine German wine.

Was it a fluke? Or could it be the discovery of a new region for fine wines?

This Snake River drainage plain does have the same 45-degree latitude as Bordeaux, but the higher elevation gives a Rhineland coolness.

PIONEER SETTLERS, who followed the gold miners of the 1860s, settled in the area later, developing the land in the Emmett Valley for orchard fruit. In the 1920s tons of table grapes and wine grapes were shipped to California. Most of the Ste. Chapelle Winery's currently extended 70 acres (Riesling 40, Chardonnay 13, Gewurztraminer 10, plus plots of Merlot and Pinot Noir) are mostly less than 10 years old. Some grapes are brought in from Washington to account for the present 31,000-case annual production.

After a quick tour of the winery's fermentation and storage areas, impeccable with ultramodern stainless steel and rows of French Limousin oak barrels, we stood for a few moments looking out across the valley, enchanted by the pattern of the landscape through those tall Gothic windows — Saint-Chapelle in Idaho.

OUR RECEPTION WINE, 1978 Chateau Ste. Chapelle Idaho Blanc de Noir ($6.50), shone with a pale coppery blush, essentially dry, foretold what we would find in the procession of wines to follow, a true varietal character of the traditional vinifera hallmarks in bouquet and taste, with no regional slant. This was true of all the 10 wines we tasted.

The most remarkable wines were: the 1977 Idaho State Johannisberg Riesling, exceeding my memories of the 1976 wine, a superb wine, with its 2 percent residual grape sugar tartly and refreshingly balanced with a just total acidity; 1977 Washington Cabernet Sauvignon, again, no regional slant, full, round, deep, rich, with sensory aspects as classic as any Medoc; 1978 Washington Chardonnay, Sagemoor Vineyards, aged in Limousin oak, perfect balance of grape and wood; 1977 American (Oregon and Washington grapes) Merlot, unique in bouquet from four months in American oak barrels.

There is distribution now in only nine Western states, but samples are on their way to Texas and Illinois, with New York and Florida markets certainly in the offing. For any further information, call Ste. Chapelle Winery (208) 459-7222, or write Caldwell, Ida. 83605.

Music Corner:

Carmel Music Society presented its finest Christmas concert ever

By SCOTT MacCLELLAND

DESPITE ALL THE commercial clamor the Christmas season finally became real for the hundreds in attendance Saturday night at Carmel Mission Basilica when the Monterey Peninsula Choral Society sang its finest Christmas concert ever.

With Maestro Haymo Taeuber's unusual programming and the fine assistance of a chamber orchestra derived from the Monterey County Symphony, the Choral Society matched the occasion with unprecedented polish and verve.

While the concert's major work was Schubert's Mass No. 3 in B-flat the only truly familiar Christmas song was Franz Gruber's eternal Silent Night. And while the Schubert mass makes only the barest of references to the birth of Christ (as always does the ordinary mass) the remaining program was all about Christmas, including works by Buxtehude, Alessandro Scarlatti, Poulenc, Yon (an early 20th century Italian) and Praetorius.

GETTING TO THAT superior point of realization took the performers about two and a half numbers. The opening Command Thine Angel that He Come, a cantata by Dietrich Buxtehude, was led with an almost tragic tempo, an effect further emphasized by deteriorating intonation, sloppy rhythm and a generally joyless expression by the choir. The piece itself is fairly plain and the effects were inflicted with transparency.

In Jesu, dulcis memoria by Tomas de Vittoria, a slow and thoughtful piece, the choir was timid and in Laetatus Sum by Scarlatti opening intonation was lame but tuned up early on and stayed there for the duration. In this latter piece the chorus sections achieved a clear and vivid balance.

Caterina Micieli and Linda Purdy were then featured in a lovely pastoral setting by Max Reger, The Virgin's Slumber Song. And the choir returned, this time a cappella, for Poulenc's Motet for the Christmas Season, one of four such occasional pieces by Poulenc, one of the major contributors to choral music in the 20th century.

Though the work is not as harmonically pungent as many Poulenc has written it was given a fine reading by the choir, whose blend of voices and articulation were exceptional.

THE VOICES HELD to these standards through Haymo Taeuber's delightful arrangements of two Swedish carols and three American spirituals.

Between these groups tenor Stephen Janzen did excellent demands by Pietro Yon. The scene was musically reminiscent of the late romantic Italian opera style of Leoncavallo and Mascagni. While no easy task, Janzen met its challenge head-on with strength of voice and fine taste.

The vocal quartet, Caterina Micieli, Linda Purdy, Stephen Janzen and William Ramsey, began the second part of the short program with the Praetorius setting of Es ist ein Ros' entsprungen, a timeless beauty that is heard all too rarely. However, the four singers could have improved the character of the piece with more subtle balance and blend.

SCHUBERT WROTE HIS third mass setting when he was 18 and it displays extraordinary strength and drama which Taeuber exploited fully.

The choir was clear and focused, the soloists were secure and forceful and the orchestra gave matching support. The vocal solos were cameos in front of the choir's dominance of the score and while not of the profound greatness of Schubert's maturity the work was musically alive and vital. It is also most tuneful and the choir's conviction and assertiveness were a pleasure to the ear.

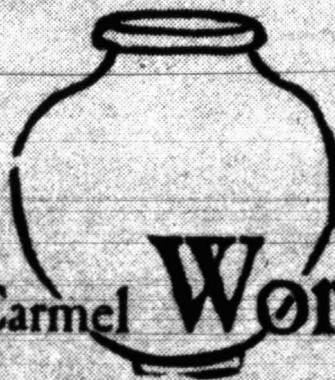

As is traditional, Taeuber's arrangement of Silent Night concluded the evening with a skillful transition from a whispering beginning to a ringing and powerful final statement.

This performance was recorded and will be broadcast on Christmas Day at 8 p.m. on KWAV, 96.9 FM.

Scott MacClelland is classical music director of KWAV-FM 96.9

Strong showing for wrestlers; junior powderpuffers defeat seniors

By MARK SANFORD

THE CARMEL HIGH wrestling team is young and small. But it had a strong showing in a dual meet against Seaside High, by staying even 21-21 in matches wrestled, but lost on forfeits.

The team is only comprised of 14 members. The Padres placed four wrestlers in the Aptos Takedown Tournament.

Coach Bob Walthour thinks he has a building block for future years, with 22 younger students coming up for practice from the Carmel Middle School.

THE CARMEL HIGH varsity soccer team lost its league opener to Hollister, 7-3, at Carmel's Bardarson Field.

Hollister jumped to a quick 3-0 lead, then at 14:30 into the first half Nigel Cooper scored on a long crossing ball. Hollister scored again, but Carmel retaliated right away on a long throw in by Mark Sanford to Steve Hougard for a head shot. Hollister came back and scored, but Carmel came right back with a crossing shot by Sanford, with Andi Poulsen kicking it in.

In his first game as goalie, Dwight Spicher turned in an excellent performance with 12 saves for Carmel.

The Padres next match is home against Palma on Jan. 9.

ON SATURDAY, DEC. 8, on Carmel High's Bardarson Field, an irresistible object met an immovable force. Which means that the annual senior-junior powder puff football game was played.

After four quarters of regulation play the game was tied 0-0. To decide a winner for the national championship against the winner of the Rose Bowl, each team was allowed four plays and the team with the most yards after that was the winner. The juniors prevailed, 21-8.

The game was filled almost entirely with tough defense. But junior quarterback Dana Hunter threw some beautiful passes, completing one for 20 yards to Diane Mahroom. The juniors almost scored at the end of the first half, but the seniors strong defense held out as time ran out.

The fourth quarter got exciting as each team tried to drive for a touchdown, but both teams intercepted each other.

By far the most exciting event of the day were the senior cheerleaders, comprised of Brentina Eagling, Paula Tourangeau, Pauley Salmonsens, and head cheerleader Danielle Grimshaw. They pleased the crowd by their original cheers and cardboard spellings.

The game was announced by Peter Kelly and a counterpart refused to be named because of the many technical difficulties he encountered.

Another crowd pleaser were the coaches. The juniors, who came in a Cadillac, were thoroughly outdone by the senior coaches, Tom Landry and Frank Lynch, alias Cory Bliesner and Dean Turner.

The game was well attended by parents, faculty, alumni and students.

The girls all seemed to thoroughly enjoy the game with no injuries except to Kim Auger's elbow. Even with the seniors throwing water balloons at the juniors at the end of the game, good sportsmanship was excellent on both sides.

ON FRIDAY, DEC. 7, THE Carmel varsity girls basketball team played Harbor High of Santa Cruz. The girls won 56-43.

After a close first half with the score 30-24, the Padres pulled away by out-scoring, out-rebounding, and out-playing Harbor girls.

The team was led by Sarah Thamer's 18 points and teammate Kathy Selle's 8 points and 10 rebounds.

Junior Dana Hunter, who played an excellent game, added 12 points and 4 steals. Aileen Kelly and Jodi Parsons had 8 and 6 points.

THE GIRLS VARSITY basketball team lost in the finals of the Alisal Tournament 40-36 in overtime. It was a very close and exciting game.

The Padre girls led after the first quarter of the game, but 16 turnovers in the first half and 31 for the game told the story. Sarah Thamer was named to the all-tourney team. Kathy Selle and Dana Hunter also played well.

In the opening night of the tournament, the girls won big 77-17, having five girls in double figures.

Hunter had 17 points followed by Thamer with 16. Selle, Jodi Parsons, and Dara Bernstien all had 10 points each.

To get into the finals, Carmel had to play a tough Righetti High team from down south with a two-time All-American. They won 48-45 in a very close game.

Thamer again led all scorers with 16 points. But it was Duffy Carolan's free throw in the closing seconds that secured the win for Carmel.

The girls travel up north to the Cupertino Tournament on Dec. 19, 20 and 21.

THE CARMEL HIGH BOYS basketball team played its best game so far this season, but still barely lost to Monterey High 53-50. It was a very exciting game.

Co-captain Mike Miller led the team with 19 points. Greg Raynes put in 10, while teammates Paul Cater and Adam Sherburne had 8 each.

The Padres, playing a man-to-man defense the entire game, hustled and always gave Monterey trouble.

Down 27-22 at half, Carmel rallied to tie the score 38-38 at the end of the third quarter. The game was within two points the rest of the way.

THE SOPHOMORE BASKETBALL team lost 64-48 to Monterey. John Parsons had 19 points and Brad Wiesner 12.

THE BASKETBALL TEAM opened the 33rd annual Carmel Tournament against Gunnerson High of San Jose. The Padres lost 60-54.

For the first three quarters of the game, the Padres played very poorly. Then in the final quarter Carmel brought it close, but the game was just out of reach.

Greg Raynes had 18 points. Playing for the first time this season, Art Strum had 16.

Injuries have hurt the team with Matt Nottenkamper out with minor surgery, Mike Wecker out with the chicken pox, and Paul Cater playing with a sore shoulder.
